Discoverer II Goes In Orbit

Two-In-One Vanguard Experiment Fails

GOP Creed Spelled Out By President

Ike Insists Need Best Measuring Rod For Spending

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower spelled out a six point creed for Republicans on Monday, and said that federal spending should be governed by the needs of the nation, "not by political opportunism."

He told 2,000 women attending the seventh annual Republican Women's Conference here that the GOP is badly outnumbered by Democrats and "all of us have to work hard" if the party is to win in the 1960 elections.

Six-Point Creed

He laid down the creed which he said has been "lived and expounded" by a long line of Republicans beginning with Abraham Lincoln. He told the women:

"They have invariably insisted (1) upon the security of our nation; (2) upon the liberty and rights of the individual. . .(3) upon respect for the rights and responsibilities of the several states; (4) upon honesty in government; (5) upon fiscal integrity; and (6) upon an expanding economy, based upon a dollar that, earned today will buy tomorrow and the next day an equal amount of groceries."

The President earlier told 300 businessmen attending an advertising council conference that the nation "can't afford to relax for a minute" in the fight against inflation because "we can be certain that the problem will return to beset us."

Critics' Arguments Belittled

He belittled arguments of some administration critics who contend that the President has overemphasized the danger of inflation.

"They forget that it is too late to repair a leaky roof when the rain is pouring down," Eisenhower said. He noted that prices have held relatively steady for almost a year, but he added:

"This is exactly the time to think about inflation, because we can be certain that the problem will return to beset us. Only the most persistent counter-pressures will keep prices where they belong."

The two speeches were crowded into a busy 24-hour interruption in his golfing vacation at Augusta, Ga. He planned to resume his Georgia rest Tuesday afternoon.

Secretary Faces New Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower delayed a decision Monday on John Foster Dulles' future as secretary of state.

Doctors will make an effort to check Dulles' cancer by new medical treatment.

Most administration leaders were gloomy about the prospects Dulles could win his fight. They expected he would resign shortly, perhaps within a comparatively few days.

Dulles' condition aroused immediate concern in Congress about who will represent the United States at the foreign ministers meeting in Geneva May 11.

Aiken's Viewpoint

Sen. George Aiken (R-Vt) said that unless Dulles is able to resume full-time work by that date, "I would expect he would resign."

"I don't think the country can go on and on without an active head of the State Department," Aiken said.

Aiken was saying in effect that an acting secretary could not stand on an equal footing at Geneva with the ministers of the Soviet Union and the Western allies of the United States.

Eisenhower, who is reported very worried about Dulles, gave no clue to the future after a 45-minute visit with Dulles at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Dulles, 71, worn and haggard, returned to the hospital Sunday after cutting short a rest stay in Florida.

Fails To Regain Strength

During his Florida visit, Dulles apparently failed to regain the strength he had when he was a full-time architect and champion of administration foreign policy, a post he has filled for six years.

The White House announced after Eisenhower's visit to the hospital that Dulles would remain there for some days for additional medical observation and new treatment.

In Sunday's sudden announcement about Dulles' return, nothing was said about his need to undergo new treatment. He underwent four weeks of intensive radiation and also received a radioactive gold injection before leaving for Florida.

Big Rocket's Second Stage Doesn't Fire

Missile, Including Two Tiny 'Moons,' Falls Into Atlantic

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) —A Vanguard rocket failed Monday night in an attempt to launch two new U.S. satellites in one firing in a unique two-in-one experiment.

The second stage of the Vanguard's three - stage satellite launching vehicle failed to function. The remaining portion of the rocket—including the two satellites—fell back into the Atlantic.

The Air Force four and one-half hours earlier launched successfully a Discoverer II satellite into orbit around the North and South poles in a firing from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

Second stage malfunction caused Vanguard failures on three previous occasions.

Two Moonlets In Nose

It was this country's first attempt to fire two satellites in one launching. Air Force rocketeers on the West Coast hurled a 440-pound artificial moon into an orbit that crosses the North and South poles.

Nestled in the smaller Vanguard's nose were two unique moonlets much smaller than the Discoverer II, the Vanguard satellites could provide vital information on manned space flight.

The first Vanguard moonlet was a lollipop-shaped device which would explore the mysteries of the earth's unpredictable magnetic field. It was made up of an 18-inch cylinder containing an instrument called a magnetometer, attached to a 13-inch fiberglass-resin sphere.

Inflatable Sphere

The second satellite was an inflatable plastic sphere coated with aluminum. This was supposed to be blown up to its full, 30 - inch diamater by nitrogen after the magnetometer was ejected from the Vanguard's third stage by a spring device. It weighed only three-tenths of one pound.

The Vanguard was ignited at 9:50 p.m., and lifted slowly off its pad over a ball of orange flame. It climbed straight up through multi-layers of thin clouds and was visible for about a minute and a half before disappearing in the overcast sky.

At intervals, the rocket almost disappeared behind the cloud layers but the bright glow from its engines was visible till it finally faded from view directly over Cape Canaveral.

HEADING FOR ORBIT — A huge sheet of flame roars from the tail of the Thor-Able missile carrying a Discoverer II satellite in its nose as the big rocket heads skyward. A few hours later yesterday, the Air Force announced the satellite, carrying an ejectable capsule which planes hope to catch in midair high over the Pacific, had achieved a polar orbit. (U. S. Planes Hope To Catch Cone When Ejected

Mid-Air Recovery To Be Attempted If Orbit Satisfactory

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — America's second Discoverer satellite roared southward into polar orbit Monday, setting the stage for a gigantic game of aerial catch in which planes may try to snatch its parachuting nose cone from the air.

Two hours after the launch an Advanced Research Projects Agency spokesman said tracking stations in Alaska, Hawaii and at this West Coast missile base had established that Discoverer II is in orbit.

The 1,600 - pound satellite is whirling around the earth in a nearly north-south orbit every 94 minutes. At its high point it is 445 miles from earth, at its closest 158.

William H. Godel, director of planning for ARPA, said "We are exultant over the second success in the Discoverer series."

The orbit would allow the satellite a life expectancy of about 30 days, he said.

One Chance In 1,000

Within 12 hours, he said, they will be able to determine if the orbit meets requirements for an attempt to recover the satellite's instrumented nose cone.

If all goes well, the nose cone will be ejected, Tuesday or later, over the Pacific near Hawaii. There C119 Flying Boxcars, trailing trapeze-like devices, hope to snag the capsule's parachute in the air.

Before the launch one expert guessed the chance of recovery at 1 in 1,000.

Such capsules, in future shots of the Discoverer satellite series, will contain mice and monkeys. They will be used to determine the effects of such perils as radiation, heat and gravity stress so that man may follow them into space.

"What we really hope to achieve is stabilization of the satellite in orbit," Godel said. "This will be necessary before we can kick off the nose cone containing the instrumented capsule. Stabilization in itself will be a tremendous first. If we get a bonus of recovering the capsule as well, we shall be doubly elated."

Godel said the entire second stage probably will orbit for about 30 days. Radio signals will be received from the second-stage satellite regardless of whether the nose cone is kicked off.

Planes Training For Weeks

In the nose cone of the second stage was a 160-pound capsule shaped like an ice cream cone with its tip cut off—17 inches long and 33 inches in diameter at the widest point.

After its ejection, the eight Hawaii-based C119s, which reportedly have been training for weeks will play their aerial game of catch with the capsule.

Each plane is equipped with two telescoping 15-foot poles, which trail down from each side of the fuselage. The pole tips are 30 feet apart and between them is a nylon harness designed to snag the capsule's parachute as the plane flies over it. Once snagged, the capsule can be reeled in.

The planes will have about 10 minutes to make their passes. If they fail, destroyers will try to fish the buoyant capsule from the sea.

Connie's Case Goes To Jury Tomorrow

Testimony Completed In Murder Trial

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Testimony ended in the dramatic Connie Nicholas murder trial Monday, and the case will go to the jury Wednesday.

"I'm still hopeful that the jury will acquit me," the svelte divorcee said after the last witness was heard in the killing of wealthy drug executive Forrest Teel.

Judge Thomas J. Faulconer will confer Tuesday with attorneys for both sides on his instructions to the all-husband jury. It probably will receive the case Wednesday afternoon after listening to closing arguments and the judge's instructions.

Lawyers Satisfied

Lawyers on both sides expressed satisfaction with their presentations in the trial, which began March 16.

The prosecution contended it has proved that Mrs. Nicholas carefully plotted the married Teel's murder after learning he was seeing an attractive and younger secretary.

The defense insisted Teel was shot accidentally in a struggle over a gun.

"We still feel it's a case of first-degree murder," said Prosecutor Phillip L. Bayt, "and we think we have introduced sufficient evidence to prove it beyond a reasonable doubt. However, that's a matter for the jury to decide."

"Ordeal," Connie Says

Bayt refused to say whether the state would demand the death penalty for Mrs. Nicholas. Indiana has never executed a woman.

"I think that our evidence went in very well," said defense attorney Charles W. Symmes. "We are confident of acquittal."

The prosecution brought in 18 witnesses and 38 exhibits in its effort to prove the 45-year-old divorcee guilty. Nine witnesses, including the defendant herself, testified for the defense.

"It's been an ordeal," Mrs. Nicholas sighed wearily as she stepped down from the witness stand Monday morning after four grueling days of testimony.

Nixon Favors "Umpire" Role By World Court

NEW YORK (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon proposes action to strengthen the World Court and to make it the umpire in disputes arising from any future East-West agreements.

At the same time, Nixon announced a forthcoming proposal by President Eisenhower to modify treaty language by which the United States reserves the right to decide which cases involving it can be taken to that court.

He said Monday night in a speech prepared for the Academy of Political Science that it is not enough to preserve "the balance of terror" that he said now exists between the free and Communist worlds.

"Even though our dedication to strength will reduce sharply the chances of war by deliberate act, as long as the rule of force retains its paramount position as the final arbiter of international disputes, there will ever remain the possibility of war by miscalculation," he said.

"If this sword of annihilation is ever removed from its precarious balance over the head of all mankind, some more positive courses of action than massive military deterrence must somehow be found."

The answer to this, Nixon said, is to move toward substituting "the rule of law" for the "rule of terror."

As a step in this direction, he said, the administration shortly will submit to Congress a proposal to modify the provision under which the United States decides for itself which matters are purely domestic and should not be taken before the World Court.

Soviet Protests Rejected By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States rejected Soviet protests Monday and declared that American planes, if need be, will fly at altitudes of more than 10,000 feet in approaching and leaving Red-encircled Berlin.

This country took the stand in a note delivered in Moscow by U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson. It was the latest in a series of exchanges stemming from a "buzzing" of an American plane by Soviet fighters on March 27.

Each country has accused the other of jeopardizing the success of the forthcoming foreign ministers conference on Berlin. The Soviets contend U. S. planes may not fly higher than 10,000 feet.

The American note insisted, however, when weather or operational characteristics of the equipment dictate such action, American planes serving Berlin will fly at higher altitudes.

It said the buzzing action by the Red fighters in the March 27 incident constituted a serious violation of flight regulations in the Berlin area.

Russians Cool To Partial Ban On Atom Tests

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and Britain Monday proposed a prompt termination of atmospheric and underwater nuclear tests but the initial Soviet reaction to the proposal was cool.

The new move was designed to tackle test suspension on a step-by-step basis and thus salvage something from the three-power nuclear ban conference here. The Western powers hope agreement can be reached on the easiest part of the problem first, with attempts in later negotiations to widen the ban so as to include outer space and underground blasts.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth and British Minister of State David Ormsby-Gore made it clear their governments preferred a complete cessation of all types of atomic and hydrogen weapons tests.

But in view of the deadlocked state of this conference, the Western powers proposed reaching limited agreement first, with the three powers binding themselves to cease testing weapons from the earth's surface to an altitude of 50 kilometers—30 miles. Underwater tests also would be banned.

These are the easiest types of explosions to detect, and also the sort which could present a greater health hazard to the world's population since they produce radioactive fallout. Fallout is not such a serious problem with underground and outer space blasts.

Dalai Lama To Go In Exile At Resort

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Tibet's fugitive Dalai Lama will be given residence at Mussoorie, a hill resort 150 miles northeast of New Delhi, while in exile in India, the Foreign Ministry announced Monday night.

The announcement was made after P. N. Menon, a special envoy from the Foreign Ministry, had conferred with the young Buddhist god-king at Bomdila in India's remote northeast frontier district.

Mussoorie is far removed from the Tibetan border. The 7,000-foot high resort, before India became independent, was a gay place frequented by rich princes. But now many of the palaces are falling into ruins and the beautiful gardens are going to weeds.

Some of these palaces would be available for the Dalai Lama and his followers, but it was reported here a hotel was being vacated to accommodate the Tibetan ruler, who escaped from the Red Chinese when his people staged an uprising about a month ago.

USW Asks Steel Price Freeze

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Steelworkers Union proposed Monday that the steel industry freeze its prices for the duration of its next contract with the union.

The union's executive board also suggested that negotiations on a new contract begin May 4, instead of as now scheduled on May 18.

The price freeze proposal was expected to meet prompt rejection from the industry—especially in view of last week's union turndown of a proposal to freeze wages and other contract benefits for another year.

Twelve big steel producers last Friday asked the union to continue present contract benefit terms for another year. USW President David J. McDonald promptly rejected the proposal.

The union's executive board affirmed McDonald's objection, then offered its alternative proposal of a price freeze.

The sparring by both sides was in anticipation of the scheduled meeting at the end of this month of the union's 170-man Wage Policy Committee, to draft new contract demands.

Famed Conductor Dies On Podium

AMSTERDAM, Holland (UPI)—Eduard Van Beinum, one of the world's leading conductors, collapsed and died of a heart attack on the podium Monday while rehearsing the Concertgebouw orchestra. He was 58.

Van Beinum had been suffering from a heart ailment for some time. The Amsterdam orchestra was playing Brahms' first symphony in C minor when the conductor called for a pause. As the musicians lowered their instruments, Van Beinum fell to the floor.

Van Beinum won acclaim as the conductor of the Concertgebouw and the Los AngelesSymphony orchestra. He had been dividing his time between the two organizations.

Fred Astaire, 'Peter Gunn' Head Emmy Nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie veteran Fred Astaire and private eye Peter Gunn were stars Monday of the nominations for the 11th annual Television Academy awards.

"An Evening with Fred Astaire," presented twice on NBC, brought the Emmy nomination for the debonair dancer, who has never been mentioned for an acting Oscar (he got an honorary one). Besides being named among contenders for best single performance, the show was cited among the best single programs and for best direction, writing, art direction, choreography and other contributions.

"Peter Gunn" proved a solid contender by placing in seven categories. It was named for best actor (Craig Stevens), best dramatic series, best supporting performances (Lola Albright, Edie Hart, Herschel Bernardi), best music, etc.

The nominations produced a cascade of names and programs in a staggering 42 categories. Playhouse 90 continued its winning ways. CBS' 90-minute drama series took 18 nominations.

Emmy was coined for the statuette in 1949; it derives from Immy, nickname for the image orthicon camera of TV's early days.

Jimmy Gleason's Funeral Tomorrow

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Fast-talking Jimmy Gleason, 76, for 20 years one of Hollywood's busiest character actors, died Sunday night.

Death came in the Motion Picture House Hospital, where he had been ill of chronic asthma nearly a year.

Requiem Mass will be at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday in St. Martin of Tours Catholic church in west Los Angeles. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Gleason was noted for his peppery roles mainly as a policeman or soldier. He was successful as a playwright as well as an actor.

Water Line Break Floods Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 1,000 employes were evacuated from the Defense Department's Pentagon Building Monday when a broken water pipe flooded sections of the first floor and basement.

The building's printing shop was flooded and some of the paper stored there was damaged.

Water rose to a depth of three inches in spots.

Thieves Catch 8,350 "Fish"

BALTIMORE (AP)—The fishing was better than usual over the weekend in the Baynesville area.

Baltimore County police reported Monday thieves used fish hooks and nylon line to pull about $8,350 from the Baynesville branch of the Equitable Trust Co. in the Loch Ridge Shopping Center.

The robbery was discovered by a woman teller when she snagged a finger on one of the hooks trying to remove deposit bags from the overnight depository.

The thieves apparently used a duplicate key to unlock the depository from the outside, snagged the bags with the hooks, and yanked them upward three feet to get hold of them.

Three bags were taken, including one containing about $6,000.

Trips To Planets By 1969 Seen If Einstein Correct

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Air Force's top expert on space medicine said Monday trips to other planets may be possible within 10 years if time actually stands still in space.

If time curves in space as the Einstein theory argues, Dr. Hubertus Strughold said, time would stand still in space. The theory that the human body will not age, based on the Einstein time-curve argument, would possibly mean that less food, air and water would be needed for space travelers.

Not just anyone could make a trip to Mars or Venus, Strughold said.

He said it will be necessary to condition a space flier for what may be an ordeal.

The human problems of a quick orbital flight around the earth—such as Project Mercury—"are not too difficult because of the short nature of the flight," Strughold, a former German air force colonel, said.

Strughold is adviser for research at the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex.

He is here for a space age forum sponsored by the University of Texas.

Strughold said that three methods, or a combination of them, may let man pass safely through the dangerous radiation belts encircling the earth.

He named the methods as shielding, entering and leaving at the polar regions where radiation is weaker, and greater velocity for the space crafts.

He said Monday night in a speech prepared for the Academy of Political Science that it is not enough to preserve "the balance of terror" that he said now exists between the free and Communist worlds.

"Even though our dedication to strength will reduce sharply the chances of war by deliberate act, as long as the rule of force retains its paramount position as the final arbiter of international disputes, there will ever remain the possibility of war by miscalculation," he said.

"If this sword of annihilation is ever removed from its precarious balance over the head of all mankind, some more positive courses of action than massive military deterrence must somehow be found."

The answer to this, Nixon said, is to move toward substituting "the rule of law" for the "rule of terror."

As a step in this direction, he said, the administration shortly will submit to Congress a proposal to modify the provision under which the United States decides for itself which matters are purely domestic and should not be taken before the World Court.

Famed Conductor Dies On Podium

AMSTERDAM, Holland (UPI)—Eduard Van Beinum, one of the world's leading conductors, collapsed and died of a heart attack on the podium Monday while rehearsing the Concertgebouw orchestra. He was 58.

Van Beinum had been suffering from a heart ailment for some time. The Amsterdam orchestra was playing Brahms' first symphony in C minor when the conductor called for a pause. As the musicians lowered their instruments, Van Beinum fell to the floor.

Van Beinum won acclaim as the conductor of the Concertgebouw and the Los AngelesSymphony orchestra. He had been dividing his time between the two organizations.

Soviet Protests Rejected By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States rejected Soviet protests Monday and declared that American planes, if need be, will fly at altitudes of more than 10,000 feet in approaching and leaving Red-encircled Berlin.

This country took the stand in a note delivered in Moscow by U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson. It was the latest in a series of exchanges stemming from a "buzzing" of an American plane by Soviet fighters on March 27.

Each country has accused the other of jeopardizing the success of the forthcoming foreign ministers conference on Berlin. The Soviets contend U. S. planes may not fly higher than 10,000 feet.

The American note insisted, however, when weather or operational characteristics of the equipment dictate such action, American planes serving Berlin will fly at higher altitudes.

It said the buzzing action by the Red fighters in the March 27 incident constituted a serious violation of flight regulations in the Berlin area.

Thieves Catch 8,350 "Fish"

BALTIMORE (AP)—The fishing was better than usual over the weekend in the Baynesville area.

Baltimore County police reported Monday thieves used fish hooks and nylon line to pull about $8,350 from the Baynesville branch of the Equitable Trust Co. in the Loch Ridge Shopping Center.

The robbery was discovered by a woman teller when she snagged a finger on one of the hooks trying to remove deposit bags from the overnight depository.

The thieves apparently used a duplicate key to unlock the depository from the outside, snagged the bags with the hooks, and yanked them upward three feet to get hold of them.

Three bags were taken, including one containing about $6,000.

Russians Cool To Partial Ban On Atom Tests

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and Britain Monday proposed a prompt termination of atmospheric and underwater nuclear tests but the initial Soviet reaction to the proposal was cool.

The new move was designed to tackle test suspension on a step-by-step basis and thus salvage something from the three-power nuclear ban conference here. The Western powers hope agreement can be reached on the easiest part of the problem first, with attempts in later negotiations to widen the ban so as to include outer space and underground blasts.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth and British Minister of State David Ormsby-Gore made it clear their governments preferred a complete cessation of all types of atomic and hydrogen weapons tests.

But in view of the deadlocked state of this conference, the Western powers proposed reaching limited agreement first, with the three powers binding themselves to cease testing weapons from the earth's surface to an altitude of 50 kilometers—30 miles. Underwater tests also would be banned.

These are the easiest types of explosions to detect, and also the sort which could present a greater health hazard to the world's population since they produce radioactive fallout. Fallout is not such a serious problem with underground and outer space blasts.

USW Asks Steel Price Freeze

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Steelworkers Union proposed Monday that the steel industry freeze its prices for the duration of its next contract with the union.

The union's executive board also suggested that negotiations on a new contract begin May 4, instead of as now scheduled on May 18.

The price freeze proposal was expected to meet prompt rejection from the industry—especially in view of last week's union turndown of a proposal to freeze wages and other contract benefits for another year.

Twelve big steel producers last Friday asked the union to continue present contract benefit terms for another year. USW President David J. McDonald promptly rejected the proposal.

The union's executive board affirmed McDonald's objection, then offered its alternative proposal of a price freeze.

The sparring by both sides was in anticipation of the scheduled meeting at the end of this month of the union's 170-man Wage Policy Committee, to draft new contract demands.

Fred Astaire, 'Peter Gunn' Head Emmy Nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie veteran Fred Astaire and private eye Peter Gunn were stars Monday of the nominations for the 11th annual Television Academy awards.

"An Evening with Fred Astaire," presented twice on NBC, brought the Emmy nomination for the debonair dancer, who has never been mentioned for an acting Oscar (he got an honorary one). Besides being named among contenders for best single performance, the show was cited among the best single programs and for best direction, writing, art direction, choreography and other contributions.

"Peter Gunn" proved a solid contender by placing in seven categories. It was named for best actor (Craig Stevens), best dramatic series, best supporting performances (Lola Albright, Edie Hart, Herschel Bernardi), best music, etc.

The nominations produced a cascade of names and programs in a staggering 42 categories. Playhouse 90 continued its winning ways. CBS' 90-minute drama series took 18 nominations.

Emmy was coined for the statuette in 1949; it derives from Immy, nickname for the image orthicon camera of TV's early days.

Jimmy Gleason's Funeral Tomorrow

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Fast-talking Jimmy Gleason, 76, for 20 years one of Hollywood's busiest character actors, died Sunday night.

Death came in the Motion Picture House Hospital, where he had been ill of chronic asthma nearly a year.

Requiem Mass will be at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday in St. Martin of Tours Catholic church in west Los Angeles. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Gleason was noted for his peppery roles mainly as a policeman or soldier. He was successful as a playwright as well as an actor.

Water Line Break Floods Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 1,000 employes were evacuated from the Defense Department's Pentagon Building Monday when a broken water pipe flooded sections of the first floor and basement.

The building's printing shop was flooded and some of the paper stored there was damaged.

Water rose to a depth of three inches in spots.

Trips To Planets By 1969 Seen If Einstein Correct

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Air Force's top expert on space medicine said Monday trips to other planets may be possible within 10 years if time actually stands still in space.

If time curves in space as the Einstein theory argues, Dr. Hubertus Strughold said, time would stand still in space. The theory that the human body will not age, based on the Einstein time-curve argument, would possibly mean that less food, air and water would be needed for space travelers.

Not just anyone could make a trip to Mars or Venus, Strughold said.

He said it will be necessary to condition a space flier for what may be an ordeal.

The human problems of a quick orbital flight around the earth—such as Project Mercury—"are not too difficult because of the short nature of the flight," Strughold, a former German air force colonel, said.

Strughold is adviser for research at the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex.

He is here for a space age forum sponsored by the University of Texas.

Strughold said that three methods, or a combination of them, may let man pass safely through the dangerous radiation belts encircling the earth.

Dalai Lama To Go In Exile At Resort

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Tibet's fugitive Dalai Lama will be given residence at Mussoorie, a hill resort 150 miles northeast of New Delhi, while in exile in India, the Foreign Ministry announced Monday night.

The announcement was made after P. N. Menon, a special envoy from the Foreign Ministry, had conferred with the young Buddhist god-king at Bomdila in India's remote northeast frontier district.

Mussoorie is far removed from the Tibetan border. The 7,000-foot high resort, before India became independent, was a gay place frequented by rich princes. But now many of the palaces are falling into ruins and the beautiful gardens are going to weeds.

Some of these palaces would be available for the Dalai Lama and his followers, but it was reported here a hotel was being vacated to accommodate the Tibetan ruler, who escaped from the Red Chinese when his people staged an uprising about a month ago.

Delaware & Hudson Out Of Rail Merger Picture

Erie, Lackawanna To Continue Talks

NEW YORK (AP)—The planned merger of three key eastern railroads became a two-way proposition Monday.

The railroads — the Erie, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and the Delaware & Hudson —had been studying a possible merger since 1956.

Monday—reportedly by mutual agreement of all three—the Delaware & Hudson stepped out of the picture.

The Erie and Lackawanna then announced they planned to continue merger negotiations.

The decisions were announced in two successive statements at a news conference attended by the presidents of the three railroads and the chairman of the Erie in the board room of the Delaware & Hudson here.

The officials said it had been impossible to work out a deal that would be fair to the stockholders of all three concerns.

Reason for collapse of the three-way merger, they said, was the relative financial strength of the D. & H. after the recession—an ordeal that plunged the two others into the red. In 1958 the D & H earned $2,636,230 while the Erie was losing $3,668,879 and the Lackawanna $3,934,319.

The altered status of the merger negotiations is expected to touch off fireworks at the annual meeting of Erie stockholders here Tuesday.

Harry W. von Willer, president of the Erie, said the Lackawanna and the Erie will realize "appreciable savings" if the two-way merger comes about. He declined to estimate how much.

The Erie has 2,320 miles of main line track in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The D. & H. operates 792 miles of track in New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont, while the Lackawanna runs over 962 miles of track in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Miners Stay Home In Morgantown Area

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP)—United Mine Workers members followed their long-standing "no contract — no work" policy Monday at 19 small coal mines in this area.

The mines' contracts with the UMW expired Sunday and they did not sign new ones. Came Monday and the miners either reported for work and then returned home after learning no contracts had been signed, or stayed at home in the first place.

The number of men idle was estimated at 150 by President Cecil J. Urbaniak of UMW District 31.

Judge Urges Patuxent Probe By Grand Jury

TOWSON, Md. (AP)—There is "abundant evidence" that the Patuxent Institution for Defective Delinquents is not accomplishing its purpose, Circuit Judge W. Albert Menchine declared Monday.

He urged a new grand jury to investigate the institution which was hailed as a "magnificent experiment" when it opened in 1955.

"Events of the past few days cry out for action," Judge Menchine told the new jurors.

A mass outbreak was staged by 34 inmates a week ago Sunday. Two of the 32 recaptured, along with two others, staged an uprising Saturday night and were taken in leg irons to the state penitentiary.

Purpose of the institution at Jessup is to attempt to rehabilitate defective delinquents. Those committed are given no specific term.

The purpose "can be accomplished only if there is an adequate staff of psychologists, psychiatrists and other personnel and if there is maximum security to prevent escape of dangerous individuals," Judge Menchine said.

"Investigate, find out why there is a staff shortage, find out why maximum security is not maintained," he instructed the Baltimore County jurors.

"Your recommendations will reach the public eye and the public voice will be heard."

Judge Menchine recalled another grand jury several years ago had helped draw attention to conditions in Maryland's mental hospitals.

One Of Trio Indicted For Safecracking

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — The Dorchester County Grand Jury Monday indicted one of three men charged with the $162,000 safecracking at a store in Wingate, Md.

The jurors returned an indictment for breaking and entering and grand larceny against Stephano Glaros, 32, of Harundale, Anne Arundel County.

No indictment was returned Monday against the other two, Eugene B. Hurley, 32, and Donald E. Westen, 47, both of Baltimore.

Glaros is free in $50,000 bail and the others are free in $30,000 bail.

Glaros' case is set on the court docket for the second week of May.

Nine witnesses were heard by the grand jury including Mr. and Mrs. George O. Powley. The 51-year-old merchant's store was burglarized Nov. 8 and the three defendants were arrested three days later.

Policeman's Dog Follows Orders, Gets Wrong Man

The man tried to get up. Baron knocked him down again.

Patrolman Clemens huffed up. He recognized a buddy, Patrolman Joseph Wade, who had been chasing another fellow.

Wade was wearing a raincoat so Baron couldn't see his uniform.

After the police trio got straightened out, they caught the real fugitive who was fined $5 for disorderly conduct. Patrolman Wade was treated at a hospital for bruises and went looking for a new raincoat.

Doctors Plan To Speed Aid In Disasters

BALTIMORE (AP) — A fire which turned a gay oyster roast into a screaming, mauling mob of men, women and children three years ago has brought about plans for an emergency medical service to handle disasters in Maryland during peace and war.

A committee of 12 doctors representing the Maryland Medical and Chirurgical Faculty is working out the details of the service.

It was on Jan. 29, 1956, that panic broke out in an Anne Arundel County hall just south of Baltimore when fire erupted suddenly. The crowd of 1,000 trampled and mauled each other in fighting to reach exits. When it was all over, 11 persons were dead and 200 injured.

It was the lack of organization outside which helped add to the chaotic conditions. Only five minutes away, there was a casualty station with needed blankets, stretchers and other equipment but it was forgotten in the confusion.

The doctors' program calls for setting up of teams ready to move to the scene of disaster on a moment's notice. Medical activities of the Red Cross, police, firemen, and related agencies would be coordinated.

A special switchboard will be set up at the faculty's offices to handle such calls on a 24 hour a day basis. The switchboard would dispatch the special medical teams to the disaster site. It also would determine which hospitals could handle the casualties, and notify the Red Cross and other agencies what aid was needed.

Boy Sentenced For Robbery

BALTIMORE (AP) — "God knows I'm innocent," 17-year-old Lemuel Smith of Amsterdam, N. Y., said solemnly Monday after he was sentenced to 20 years for armed robbery of a woman.

"I sincerely believe in my heart that this boy is innocent," added his lawyer, Milton Allen.

The lawyer said he hadn't decided whether to ask the Maryland Court of Appeals to review the case. The Supreme Bench of Baltimore previously rejected an appeal of the guilty verdict returned by a jury.

Judge Joseph R. Byrnes gave Smith the maximum sentence for armed robbery. A companion charge of assault with intent to murder will be dropped.

The judge recalled that Mrs. Edna Johnson, victim of the robbery in a cleaning shop last July 30, had been critically beaten.

"Only a surgeon's skill saved this woman's life and indirectly that skill saved your life," Judge Byrnes told Smith.

During the trial, Judge Byrnes had refused to grant a defense request for a psychiatric examination of Mrs. Johnson.

He also discounted influence on the jurors by the presence of New York police authorities who had questioned Smith about another crime there.

Help Of Public Asked In Hunt For 2 Women

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—Up against a virtual blank wall in their efforts to find out what happened to two Clarksburg women who disappeared last Wednesday, police Monday asked the public to help them out.

Following a tedious and meticulous search of a 3½-mile section of the West Fork River between here and Weston, authorities urged residents of communities from Sutton to Clarksburg to report anything out of the ordinary they think might aid in the investigation.

While harboring fears Mrs. Juanita Ferguson, 53, and Mrs. Virginia Conley, 54, could have been the victims of a kidnaper, police initiated a foot-by-foot search of the river along much of its 24-mile course between Weston and Clarksburg.

The swift, muddy stream is 18 feet in some spots, searchers reported.

The river runs alongside U. S. 19 in many places. The intensive river search, with use of an electronic detector followed a report by a Weston gas station attendant that he believed he sold some gas to the women late Wednesday night.

However, the last time the pair definitely were seen was in a restaurant near Sutton, 72 miles south of here.

West Virginia State Police Supt. Hazen Fair appealed for help both in the search and information from the public. He particularly urged postmen, commercial drivers and outdoor workers to report anything that might shed some light on the case.

"It's a baffling mystery," Fair said. "If we had even one inkling of what happened to them, we could proceed much more effectively."

Hepbron Hearing Delayed To May 11

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Police Commissioner James M. Hepbron's hearing before Gov. Tawes was postponed from next Monday until May 11.

The edlay was granted Monday by the governor after the Baltimore city delegation, which filed charges of incompetence against Hepbron, asked for more time for its counsel.

The case will be presented by C. Awdry Thompson of Cambridge, former majority floor leader in the House of Delegates.

In addition to the new hearing date, it was agreed at a meeting in the governor's office that it will be conducted in accordance with court rules.

Attending the meeting with the governor were Thompson, Del. Mandel (D-Balto 5th), chairman of the city delegation, William D. Macmillan, Hepbron's lawyer, C. Ferdinand Sybert, attorney-general, Del. Mitchell (D-Charles) and Richard W. Case, an unofficial adiser of the governor.

Mitchell acted as counsel when the city delegation conducted an inquiry of its own for two days last month.

He may assist Thompson at the governor's hearing.

Hepbron and Macmillan refused to attend the delegation hearing in protest to its rules of conduct. They permitted no direct cross examination by Macmillan or presentation of defense witnesses.

Macmillan has asked the governor to subpoena 30 witnesses and all will testify under oath. The delegation had no power to force witnesses to appear or to swear them to tell the truth.

Only six witnesses testified. Two are former members of the Baltimore police department, two are presently on the force, and two are officials of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The main charges against Hepbron, whose term has two more years to run, are that he committed errors of judgment, condoned illegal telephone tapping and associated with criminals.

The governor has the only power to remove Hepbron from office.

Maryland's Wartime CD Director Dies

FARMVILLE, Va. (AP) — Col. Henry S. Barrett, director of Maryland's air-raid service during World War II, died Sunday here. He was 85.

Barrett was appointed to the Maryland post by former Gov. O'Conor in September, 1941. He supervised blackouts and other defense programs.

Barrett, a native of Baltimore, served for a time in an Army company under his father, but later transferred to a cavalry troop. He was a regimental commander in France in World War I.

Barrett rejoined the Baltimore Gas and Electric Co. after the war and remained with the concern until his retirement.

"I sincerely believe in my heart that this boy is innocent," added his lawyer, Milton Allen.

The lawyer said he hadn't decided whether to ask the Maryland Court of Appeals to review the case. The Supreme Bench of Baltimore previously rejected an appeal of the guilty verdict returned by a jury.

Judge Joseph R. Byrnes gave Smith the maximum sentence for armed robbery. A companion charge of assault with intent to murder will be dropped.

The judge recalled that Mrs. Edna Johnson, victim of the robbery in a cleaning shop last July 30, had been critically beaten.

"Only a surgeon's skill saved this woman's life and indirectly that skill saved your life," Judge Byrnes told Smith.

During the trial, Judge Byrnes had refused to grant a defense request for a psychiatric examination of Mrs. Johnson.

He also discounted influence on the jurors by the presence of New York police authorities who had questioned Smith about another crime there.

Help Of Public Asked In Hunt For 2 Women

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—Up against a virtual blank wall in their efforts to find out what happened to two Clarksburg women who disappeared last Wednesday, police Monday asked the public to help them out.

Following a tedious and meticulous search of a 3½-mile section of the West Fork River between here and Weston, authorities urged residents of communities from Sutton to Clarksburg to report anything out of the ordinary they think might aid in the investigation.

While harboring fears Mrs. Juanita Ferguson, 53, and Mrs. Virginia Conley, 54, could have been the victims of a kidnaper, police initiated a foot-by-foot search of the river along much of its 24-mile course between Weston and Clarksburg.

The swift, muddy stream is 18 feet in some spots, searchers reported.

The river runs alongside U. S. 19 in many places. The intensive river search, with use of an electronic detector followed a report by a Weston gas station attendant that he believed he sold some gas to the women late Wednesday night.

However, the last time the pair definitely were seen was in a restaurant near Sutton, 72 miles south of here.

West Virginia State Police Supt. Hazen Fair appealed for help both in the search and information from the public. He particularly urged postmen, commercial drivers and outdoor workers to report anything that might shed some light on the case.

"It's a baffling mystery," Fair said. "If we had even one inkling of what happened to them, we could proceed much more effectively."

Hepbron Hearing Delayed To May 11

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Police Commissioner James M. Hepbron's hearing before Gov. Tawes was postponed from next Monday until May 11.

The edlay was granted Monday by the governor after the Baltimore city delegation, which filed charges of incompetence against Hepbron, asked for more time for its counsel.

The case will be presented by C. Awdry Thompson of Cambridge, former majority floor leader in the House of Delegates.

In addition to the new hearing date, it was agreed at a meeting in the governor's office that it will be conducted in accordance with court rules.

Attending the meeting with the governor were Thompson, Del. Mandel (D-Balto 5th), chairman of the city delegation, William D. Macmillan, Hepbron's lawyer, C. Ferdinand Sybert, attorney-general, Del. Mitchell (D-Charles) and Richard W. Case, an unofficial adiser of the governor.

Mitchell acted as counsel when the city delegation conducted an inquiry of its own for two days last month.

He may assist Thompson at the governor's hearing.

Hepbron and Macmillan refused to attend the delegation hearing in protest to its rules of conduct. They permitted no direct cross examination by Macmillan or presentation of defense witnesses.

Macmillan has asked the governor to subpoena 30 witnesses and all will testify under oath. The delegation had no power to force witnesses to appear or to swear them to tell the truth.

Only six witnesses testified. Two are former members of the Baltimore police department, two are presently on the force, and two are officials of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The main charges against Hepbron, whose term has two more years to run, are that he committed errors of judgment, condoned illegal telephone tapping and associated with criminals.

The governor has the only power to remove Hepbron from office.

Maryland's Wartime CD Director Dies

FARMVILLE, Va. (AP) — Col. Henry S. Barrett, director of Maryland's air-raid service during World War II, died Sunday here. He was 85.

Barrett was appointed to the Maryland post by former Gov. O'Conor in September, 1941. He supervised blackouts and other defense programs.

Barrett, a native of Baltimore, served for a time in an Army company under his father, but later transferred to a cavalry troop. He was a regimental commander in France in World War I.

Barrett rejoined the Baltimore Gas and Electric Co. after the war and remained with the concern until his retirement.

Easter Island Story Is Reviewed

David G. Nuzum, head of the English department at Potomac State College, Keyser, was guest speaker at the final meeting of the Literature Group of the Woman's Civic Club, held Thursday at the club house. He reviewed Thor Heyerdahl's story, "Aku-Aku, The Secret of Easter Island." Mr. Nuzum gave an overall picture of the island, its location, history, and inhabitants. Then he presented an account of the expedition, its members, and their exciting discoveries.

The whole pattern of the book, said Professor Nuzum, is a mixture of romantic lore and scientific fact, and the author has woven it together skillfully. It held all the elements of a first-rate scientific detective story.

The author described Easter Island's location somewhat nebulously as being "East of the Sun and West of the Moon"; one of the loneliest islands in the world, where the nearest land to be seen from its shores is the moon. Factually, it is the site of a volcanic mountain, extending about 50 square miles in the South Pacific Ocean, inhabited by a colony of nine hundred Polynesians, a military governor, a mayor, and the village priest. It is owned by Chile.

The village is a fenced-in area complete with school, hospital, native huts and very little else in the way of civilized conveniences. The priest, Father Sebastian, has been living there for twenty years, and enjoys great prestige and power as the "uncrowned king" and friend of the natives. The mayor, a descendant of one of the island's early settlers, is described by the author as an astute and resourceful man.

The terrain is rugged and almost impossible to negotiate by foot because of lumps of lava-like, reddish substance that dot the island. Consequently, all transportation is by horse or jeep.

The land is barren and the vegetation sparse, although suitable for sheep-grazing. The natives are steeped in primitive superstition, tribal customs, legends, and sun-worshipping. The word Aku means "protective spirit" or the equivalent of a good luck charm, and it sets the tone of the story when the author unwittingly fashions a symbolic "aku" from a rope he had been tying, and thus impresses the natives with his occult powers.

Professor Nuzum described the details of forming the expedition, which was under the sponsorship of Prince Olaf of Norway. It was headed by five archaeologists, a crew of technicians, and elaborate supplies, including articles of barter, and even a small Christmas tree, kept in refrigeration, for the holiday pleasure of the members.

Next, the speaker delved into the "secret" of Easter Island, as revealed by the author. Modern scientific detection enabled the expedition to trace the origin of the fantastic group of gigantic statues, about six hundred male characters, carved out of the gray stone of the volcanic mountain that dominates the island. These weird colossi, once standing like a stone army, backs to the sea, are now toppled and fallen, face down. They range in height from thirty to sixty-nine feet, and weigh tons. It has been established they were used as burial grounds, and had been in existence before Columbus discovered America. Their faces are grotesque and distinguished by peculiar elongated ear-lobes. The models were thought to be members of an early tribe who pierced and stretched their ears in this manner, and were known as "long ears." They were the rulers at that time, but later, through sabotage and betrayal, were overthrown and annihilated by their enemy, the "short-ears."

The scientists, having satisfied themselves as to who, when, and why, of the secret, had one final question: how? They enlisted the aid of the mayor and with his help proved that a talented sculptor and six men, working one year, could produce a medium-sized statue. The next question as to how the statues were transported across the rough ground was solved when a crew of 180 men moved a 12-ton statue across the plain by means of a specially constructed sled. Finally, how they were put into an upright position was explained by having 11 men work for 18 days with poles to prod the stones into position.

In summing up, Professor Nuzum said he found that in the matter of superstition the primitive and modern cultures have a lot in common. He cited present-day uneasiness with the number "thirteen," horror of black cats, faith in fortune tellers, and pleasure in finding a four-leaf clover. The natives of Easter Island have their Aku or Good Spirit, and we speak of a man's "good conscience," or his "sixth sense." In essence, said Professor Nuzum, they are very much the same.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Robert M. Bruce, who was assisted by her co-chairman, Mrs. Charles S. Catherman Jr., Mrs. Robert E. Moore, Mrs. Fred Dodge, and Mrs. W. I. Burton, members of her committee.

District 1 Nurses To Hear Dr. Hodges Tomorrow

Dr. W. Royce Hodges, gynecologist, will address District 1, Maryland State Nurses Association on cancer as it has to do with his specialty.

The meeting is to be held at Memorial Hospital tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. Miss Mary Margaret King, program chairman, will introduce the speaker.

Mrs. Marietta C. Early will preside. Reports of standing committees will be given and plans are to be formulated for the annual banquet.

The board of directors will meet prior to the general business session.

Mrs. Hounshell Heads Susannah Wesley Zone

Plans to send the leader and assistant leader to the School of Missions in June were formulated at the spring meeting of the Susannah Wesley Zone, held Thursday at Mapleside Methodist Church.

Mrs. Nina Bender installed the new officers. They are Mrs. Edgar Hounshell from Cresaptown church, leader; Mrs. J. S. Minke, Kingsley church, assistant leader, and Mrs. E. F. Stewart, Fairview Avenue church, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Henry Kimble presided at the meeting. Miss Grace Stiner, retired deaconess, conducted the devotions, taking as her theme, Isaiah. Greetings were extended by Mrs. Doris Proudfoot, president of the WSCS of the host church. All conference officers gave highlights of their work. They included Mrs. E. F. Phillips, Mrs. Nina Bender, Mrs. R. C. Nimon, Mrs. W. H. Shockley, Mrs. R. J. Reuschline, Miss Lillian Compton and Mrs. Mary Thompson. Conference meetings were announced.

Church Women Will Meet

The May Fellowship luncheon and the state meeting will be planned at the bi-monthly meeting of the United Church Women of Cumberland, which will be held April 30. The meeting is to be held in the fellowship hall of First Presbyterian Church at 10 a. m. Mrs. E. E. Miller will preside.

Plans will be completed for the May 1 fellowship luncheon, which is to be held at the Ali Ghan Country Club, at which time Mrs. David D. Baker, editor of the "Church Women" official magazine of the national organization, will be the speaker. Special music also will feature the program. Mrs. R. C. Isiminger is local chairman and Mrs. E. F. Phillips, ticket chairman. Tickets have been mailed to all affiliated churches, and reservations are to be made with the chairman by April 28.

Reservations for the Maryland state meeting will be taken at the meeting on the 30th. The state session is to be May 7-8 at New Windsor. Mrs. R. W. Young, Cumberland, state president, will preside. Mrs. F. Lee Fresh, city, state May Fellowship chairman; Mrs. George Alexander, city, will give the nominating report; Miss Mabel E. Myers, president of the Frostburg Council also will participate in the program. Mrs. Ralph Holland of Worcester, Mass., area counselor of 14 North Eastern states, will be the speaker and Mrs. Lillian Long, Baltimore, is to give an illustrated lecture of her tour of Europe last summer. It is to be a "Miniature National Assembly."

Those wishing to attend are to call Mrs. John S. Cook, PA 2-6232, for transportation.

Evangelism Program Is Presented

A program promoting child evangelism was presented by the Good News Club of the Cresaptown, Winchester Road area, at the Sunday evening worship service of First Methodist Church. The group, under the direction of Mrs. Muriel Schramm, secretary-treasurer of the county child evangelism program and member of the state committee, and teacher of the group, presented several choruses and gave their favorite Bible verses. Class work was illustrated by flannelgraph and a Bible quiz was held. Mrs. Catherine Longerbeam is assistant teacher and hostess for the group.

An illustrated talk on Jesus feeding the 5,000 was given by Miss May Hoover, state director. Paul Drechsel, of Calvary Baptist Church, Cresaptown, chairman of the Allegany County committee for child evangelism and member of the state advisory council, also spoke. Edward Yacenech gave readings and explained the program. The entire congregation sang "Praise Him," "Stand Up for Jesus," "Glory," "Break Thou the Bread of Life," and "Bring Them In." Rev. Everett Culp gave the closing prayer and offered benediction.

Mrs. Schramm extended an invitation to anyone interested in the child evangelism program to join the prayer service the first Monday of each month at 10 a. m. in the Youth for Christ office, on the second floor of 18 Baltimore Street.

Easter Island Story Is Reviewed

David G. Nuzum, head of the English department at Potomac State College, Keyser, was guest speaker at the final meeting of the Literature Group of the Woman's Civic Club, held Thursday at the club house. He reviewed Thor Heyerdahl's story, "Aku-Aku, The Secret of Easter Island." Mr. Nuzum gave an overall picture of the island, its location, history, and inhabitants. Then he presented an account of the expedition, its members, and their exciting discoveries.

The whole pattern of the book, said Professor Nuzum, is a mixture of romantic lore and scientific fact, and the author has woven it together skillfully. It held all the elements of a first-rate scientific detective story.

The author described Easter Island's location somewhat nebulously as being "East of the Sun and West of the Moon"; one of the loneliest islands in the world, where the nearest land to be seen from its shores is the moon. Factually, it is the site of a volcanic mountain, extending about 50 square miles in the South Pacific Ocean, inhabited by a colony of nine hundred Polynesians, a military governor, a mayor, and the village priest. It is owned by Chile.

The village is a fenced-in area complete with school, hospital, native huts and very little else in the way of civilized conveniences. The priest, Father Sebastian, has been living there for twenty years, and enjoys great prestige and power as the "uncrowned king" and friend of the natives. The mayor, a descendant of one of the island's early settlers, is described by the author as an astute and resourceful man.

The terrain is rugged and almost impossible to negotiate by foot because of lumps of lava-like, reddish substance that dot the island. Consequently, all transportation is by horse or jeep.

The land is barren and the vegetation sparse, although suitable for sheep-grazing. The natives are steeped in primitive superstition, tribal customs, legends, and sun-worshipping. The word Aku means "protective spirit" or the equivalent of a good luck charm, and it sets the tone of the story when the author unwittingly fashions a symbolic "aku" from a rope he had been tying, and thus impresses the natives with his occult powers.

Professor Nuzum described the details of forming the expedition, which was under the sponsorship of Prince Olaf of Norway. It was headed by five archaeologists, a crew of technicians, and elaborate supplies, including articles of barter, and even a small Christmas tree, kept in refrigeration, for the holiday pleasure of the members.

Next, the speaker delved into the "secret" of Easter Island, as revealed by the author. Modern scientific detection enabled the expedition to trace the origin of the fantastic group of gigantic statues, about six hundred male characters, carved out of the gray stone of the volcanic mountain that dominates the island. These weird colossi, once standing like a stone army, backs to the sea, are now toppled and fallen, face down. They range in height from thirty to sixty-nine feet, and weigh tons. It has been established they were used as burial grounds, and had been in existence before Columbus discovered America. Their faces are grotesque and distinguished by peculiar elongated ear-lobes. The models were thought to be members of an early tribe who pierced and stretched their ears in this manner, and were known as "long ears." They were the rulers at that time, but later, through sabotage and betrayal, were overthrown and annihilated by their enemy, the "short-ears."

The scientists, having satisfied themselves as to who, when, and why, of the secret, had one final question: how? They enlisted the aid of the mayor and with his help proved that a talented sculptor and six men, working one year, could produce a medium-sized statue. The next question as to how the statues were transported across the rough ground was solved when a crew of 180 men moved a 12-ton statue across the plain by means of a specially constructed sled. Finally, how they were put into an upright position was explained by having 11 men work for 18 days with poles to prod the stones into position.

In summing up, Professor Nuzum said he found that in the matter of superstition the primitive and modern cultures have a lot in common. He cited present-day uneasiness with the number "thirteen," horror of black cats, faith in fortune tellers, and pleasure in finding a four-leaf clover. The natives of Easter Island have their Aku or Good Spirit, and we speak of a man's "good conscience," or his "sixth sense." In essence, said Professor Nuzum, they are very much the same.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Robert M. Bruce, who was assisted by her co-chairman, Mrs. Charles S. Catherman Jr., Mrs. Robert E. Moore, Mrs. Fred Dodge, and Mrs. W. I. Burton, members of her committee.

Program For City Street Work To Begin This Week

A schedule for a program of spring street work was established over the weekend at a meeting of John J. Long, commissioner of streets and public property, with key men in his department.

Beginning this week, a crew under Foreman Clarence R. Dyche will begin to concrete drainage gutters in alleys for the north, west and south districts.

William C. Simpson, foreman over street work in the East Side district will direct this work in his section.

Another crew headed by Raymond R. Valentine, also a foreman, will begin on May 1 to repair semi-surface streets, fill frost openings in macadam streets and will institute a general street oiling program.

While Dyche is conducting the guttering project in the three districts, Raymond G. Frantz will temporarily replace him as foreman of the South End crew.

During Frantz's special assignment, his North End crew will be headed by Louis F. Kastner.

The street cleaning section will continue its efforts to provide a clean city, Commissioner Long said.

Street Superintendent Andrew R. Heller has been following up this work closely, Long added.

He pointed to several favorable comments on cleaning of North Centre Street that have been received in the mail by the commissioner.

Two of the letters were from residents of the 200-block of North Centre Street and praised the Street Department for cleaning up the street in that section.

A third expressed thanks of a Sperry Terrace property owner for the department's quick action in removing certain bushes and trees at the intersection of Edison Avenue and Mann's Terrace.

Learn how to cultivate a serene brow.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

A Smooth Brow Belies A Person's Years!

Wrinkling up your brow won't solve a single one of your personal problems, but it will create another. Lines will form across your forehead, permanently ruining the smooth perfection of your face.

Every time you frown you are letting lines creep up on you like unwanted guests. It's just as easy to keep them away.

The wisest procedure is just not to invite them at all. Each time you frown, you are asking wrinkles to come and to stay permanently. When you keep your expression frown-free, the wrinkles know they're not welcome.

For the next few weeks, as you talk and work, concentrate on your expression and make your brow hold still. Pretty soon you'll discover that you have browbeaten your forehead into perpetual smoothness!

Here's an excellent brow-beating trick. Whenever you know you are going to be alone for any length of time, cut a triangle from a piece of court plaster about an inch long on each side. Then fit it into the space between your eyebrows. It will gently tug at the skin as a reminder to you every time you start to frown.

Be sure to lubricate your forehead as often as possible. Dot on a rich oil whenever you can and massage it into the skin. Elevate your elbows to should level and use the fingertips of both hands. Start in the center of your forehead between your eyebrows and using light, small, quick strokes work up to your hair line.

Go over this area several times and then move toward the right. When you have completely covered the right side of your forehead, go back to the center and work toward your left temple.

Finish by pressing your palm firmly across your entire forehead several times. Remove the excess oil by blotting with a tissue.

Never be careless about any part of your skin. Proper care means so much to your looks and to your health. I'd suggest you read further on the subject in my booklet, "Secrets of Skin Care." For your copy, just send a request with 25c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this newspaper.

VA Dental Care Plan Outlined

One of the most frequently misunderstood services of the Veterans Administration involves veterans' rights to dental treatment, R. T. Brown, regional VA manager, observed.

In a communication to Samuel J. Weston, local contact representative for the VA, Mr. Brown said that "generally speaking, the war veteran out of service for more than one year is no longer entitled to dental treatment. Veterans of peacetime service are not entitled to treatment for minor dental disabilities unless they were discharged for disability or have been granted compensation for other disabilities."

Mr. Weston notes that dental treatment is currently provided for three groups of veterans:

(1) Veterans who apply within one year of discharge and VA agrees that cavities or missing teeth resulted from their military service.

(2) Veterans with dental disabilities of sufficiently serious nature that compensation is awarded, those with jaw disabilities or dental conditions resulting from wounds or accidents.

(3) Former prisoners of war with dental disabilities, veterans with dental conditions that aggravate another condition resulting from service for which treatment is being rendered, and Spanish American war veterans.

Mr. Brown advised Mr. Weston that any veterans in doubt of their entitlement should be carefully screened and if necessary, should be referred to the regional office, or proper application filed.

Mr. Weston said he will counsel with any veterans who have questions about this dental care provision. His office is on the third floor of the Post Office Building.

Council Approves Bids On Three Projects, Receives Two Others

The Mayor and Council accepted bids on three projects and received bids on two others at its meeting yesterday.

The bid of Taylor Lumber Company in the amount of $1,987.60 was accepted for furnishing materials for replacing a building destroyed by fire at Cumberland Municipal Airport.

Orrie Sensabaugh's bid of $2,824 for a Little League ball field in Constitution Park was accepted as was the bid of Central Texas Iron Works for $1,432. to supply two sections of portable steel grandstands. Both are to be charged to the Playground Bond Issue.

Bids submitted to council here included one by John S. Cook and Son for exterior painting and repairs to City Hall; and two others by Orrie Sensabaugh and Hout Construction Company for constructing a double tennis court in Constitution Park. Both were referred to Street Commissioner John J. Long.

In actions concerning personnel, council approved the reassignment of Gilbert L. Markwood from the flood maintainance crew to the Street Department; and Vance L. Markwood from the Street Department to the flood maintenance unit.

Both men will retain seniority and the changes are effective as of Febraury 16. The changes had been pending for some time and been tabled for study by council. The vote on both was 4-1 with Commissioner Long dissenting.

Louis E. Powers was appointed a seasonal laborer in the Parks Department at $1.5. an hour effective April 15.

Soil Problems Are Solved By Local Office

The Maryland office of the Soil Conservation Service is seeking a fuller report on how the local office is giving assistance to residents of urban areas.

Martin Gordon, work unit conservationist of the SCS here, has received a bulletin from the state which is seeking data on assistance given.

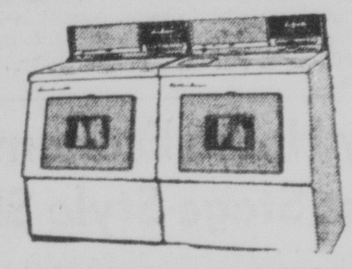

Technical service for institutions and organizations and cooperation with other agencies is also outlined in the bulletin.

Often, Mr. Gordon said, residents will come to his office seekink assistance on the type of soil where they plan to build or improve their property.

His office has also advised residents in urban areas how to go about putting in drainage ditches in order that adjoining property will not be affected by runoff water.

At times he gets inquiries about water which floods the basement of a home due to runoff after a heavy rain. Drainage and soil conditions are among the problems faced by homeowners who seek assistance from Mr. Gordon's office.

Program For City Street Work To Begin This Week

A schedule for a program of spring street work was established over the weekend at a meeting of John J. Long, commissioner of streets and public property, with key men in his department.

Beginning this week, a crew under Foreman Clarence R. Dyche will begin to concrete drainage gutters in alleys for the north, west and south districts.

William C. Simpson, foreman over street work in the East Side district will direct this work in his section.

Another crew headed by Raymond R. Valentine, also a foreman, will begin on May 1 to repair semi-surface streets, fill frost openings in macadam streets and will institute a general street oiling program.

While Dyche is conducting the guttering project in the three districts, Raymond G. Frantz will temporarily replace him as foreman of the South End crew.

During Frantz's special assignment, his North End crew will be headed by Louis F. Kastner.

The street cleaning section will continue its efforts to provide a clean city, Commissioner Long said.

Street Superintendent Andrew R. Heller has been following up this work closely, Long added.

He pointed to several favorable comments on cleaning of North Centre Street that have been received in the mail by the commissioner.

Two of the letters were from residents of the 200-block of North Centre Street and praised the Street Department for cleaning up the street in that section.

A third expressed thanks of a Sperry Terrace property owner for the department's quick action in removing certain bushes and trees at the intersection of Edison Avenue and Mann's Terrace.

Learn how to cultivate a serene brow.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

A Smooth Brow Belies A Person's Years!

Wrinkling up your brow won't solve a single one of your personal problems, but it will create another. Lines will form across your forehead, permanently ruining the smooth perfection of your face.

Every time you frown you are letting lines creep up on you like unwanted guests. It's just as easy to keep them away.

The wisest procedure is just not to invite them at all. Each time you frown, you are asking wrinkles to come and to stay permanently. When you keep your expression frown-free, the wrinkles know they're not welcome.

For the next few weeks, as you talk and work, concentrate on your expression and make your brow hold still. Pretty soon you'll discover that you have browbeaten your forehead into perpetual smoothness!

Here's an excellent brow-beating trick. Whenever you know you are going to be alone for any length of time, cut a triangle from a piece of court plaster about an inch long on each side. Then fit it into the space between your eyebrows. It will gently tug at the skin as a reminder to you every time you start to frown.

Be sure to lubricate your forehead as often as possible. Dot on a rich oil whenever you can and massage it into the skin. Elevate your elbows to should level and use the fingertips of both hands. Start in the center of your forehead between your eyebrows and using light, small, quick strokes work up to your hair line.

Go over this area several times and then move toward the right. When you have completely covered the right side of your forehead, go back to the center and work toward your left temple.

Finish by pressing your palm firmly across your entire forehead several times. Remove the excess oil by blotting with a tissue.

Never be careless about any part of your skin. Proper care means so much to your looks and to your health. I'd suggest you read further on the subject in my booklet, "Secrets of Skin Care." For your copy, just send a request with 25c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this newspaper.

VA Dental Care Plan Outlined

One of the most frequently misunderstood services of the Veterans Administration involves veterans' rights to dental treatment, R. T. Brown, regional VA manager, observed.

In a communication to Samuel J. Weston, local contact representative for the VA, Mr. Brown said that "generally speaking, the war veteran out of service for more than one year is no longer entitled to dental treatment. Veterans of peacetime service are not entitled to treatment for minor dental disabilities unless they were discharged for disability or have been granted compensation for other disabilities."

Mr. Weston notes that dental treatment is currently provided for three groups of veterans:

(1) Veterans who apply within one year of discharge and VA agrees that cavities or missing teeth resulted from their military service.

(2) Veterans with dental disabilities of sufficiently serious nature that compensation is awarded, those with jaw disabilities or dental conditions resulting from wounds or accidents.

(3) Former prisoners of war with dental disabilities, veterans with dental conditions that aggravate another condition resulting from service for which treatment is being rendered, and Spanish American war veterans.

Mr. Brown advised Mr. Weston that any veterans in doubt of their entitlement should be carefully screened and if necessary, should be referred to the regional office, or proper application filed.

Mr. Weston said he will counsel with any veterans who have questions about this dental care provision. His office is on the third floor of the Post Office Building.

Both men will retain seniority and the changes are effective as of Febraury 16. The changes had been pending for some time and been tabled for study by council. The vote on both was 4-1 with Commissioner Long dissenting.

Firemen Receive Special Praise For Recent Efforts

The Cumberland Fire Department has received praise for the "efficient and outstanding" job during two recent fires here.

Laudatory comments came as a result of the department's work in connection with a fire at the Maryland Theatre and at the home of Water Commissioner G. Ray Light on Arch Street last week. Light is also manager of the theatre.

Harry G. Beneman of Beneman and Sons furniture store, wrote the Mayor and Council yesterday commending the "alertness and efficiency" of the department during the theatre fire and the protection given to the store property.

"We can all sleep better knowing we have such a well-trained, efficient department guarding our property," he said.

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming also praised the work of his men as well as that of the Water Department and Police Department during the emergency.

Commissioner Light referred to the fact that he had to call on the department twice and expressed the same sentiments in praising efforts of firemen.

At his home, he said, the work of firemen saved him considerable money and they confined the blaze to one room.

As for the theatre fire, he said, any criticism people might have that firemen don't earn their money would have been dispelled if they could have seen them at work. "One job like that a month would be worth the salary firemen get," Light said.

Then in a jocular vein, and referring to Fleming's thanks for Water Department cooperation, Light said: "What else could I do? It was MY theatre burning!"

Lakes Over Crest

Lake Gordon is five inches above the crest of the spillway and Lake Koon three inches above, C. L. Brotemarkle, assistant superintendent of Evitts Creek Water Company reported. Consumption for the week ending yesterday was 80,370,000 gallons compared to 80,180,000 the same period a year ago.

ESSAY WINNER — Sharon O'Rourke, LaVale, sophomore at Catholic Girls Central High School, placed first in the local judging of the Americanism essay contest sponsored by Auxiliary Unit 13, American Legion, here. The topic of the essay was "Our Flag—Symbol of Faith and Freedom." The award, a cash prize of $10, will be presented by the auxiliary on June 2.

Charles Scarlett, Present City Aide, Seeks Engineering Assistant's Post

A present City Engineering Department employe who says he previously qualified for the position, asked the Mayor and Council yesterday to appoint him as assistant city engineer.

The request was contained in a letter from Charles R. Scarlett, 1704 Holland Street, a draftsman in the department.

Council has indicated it will appoint one assistant city engineer soon from an eligible list provided by the Civil Service Commission after recent examinations. The apparent choice, according to council sources, is Franklin T. Blaney of Wadsworth, Ohio. Mayor J. Edwin Keech said last week it is hoped to have the assistant on duty by June.

Council, meanwhile, has authority to appoint two assistants depending on the need and whether it has sufficient funds to pay the salaries.

At the suggestion of Street Commissioner John J. Long, council has agreed to give Scarlett an interview and hear his further explanation of the letter submitted yesterday. Long said it is "only fair" to have the interview with Scarlett. He said Scarlett is an employe and is already entitled to consideration.

In his letter, Scarlett reviewed events leading up to his request. He said in 1952, Charles R. Nuzum, then newly-appointed as city engineer, offered him the position of draftsman. Scarlett said he refused until Nuzum gave his personal guarantee that when William H. Marean retired as assistant city engineer, Scarlett would be named to replace him.

Scarlett declared he accepted the job as draftsman at a reduction in salary and since that time has realized Nuzum's promise carried no authority. When Marean retired in April, 1955, Scarlett said he approached Nuzum and was told it would take time to convince the Mayor and Council that he (Scarlett) was qualified. So the matter was not mentioned for a year and late in 1956, Scarlett said, he inquired again and was told it would be looked into. Another year passed without satisfaction, he continued.

Then, Scarlett said, in September 1957 the position of assistant was advertised with an examination to be given in November. He said he qualified in this examination and was placed on the eligible list.

On November 17, 1958, Scarlett said, present City Attorney William R. Carscaden notified the Civil Service Commission the eligible list was being abolished because no one on it was a college graduate.

Scarlett said since 1955 he has been doing assistant city engineer duties on an unofficial basis and on various occasions and for extensive periods during absence of the city engineer, the responsibility of the Engineering Department has fallen on his shoulders.

Scarlett did not take the most recent assistant engineer exam and his name is not on the new list of eligibles, City Hall sources said.

Salvage Rental Fee Is Reduced

Rental fee of Feldstein Iron and Metal Works for exclusive salvage rights at the city dump was reduced from $205 a month to $105 a month yesterday by the Mayor and Council.

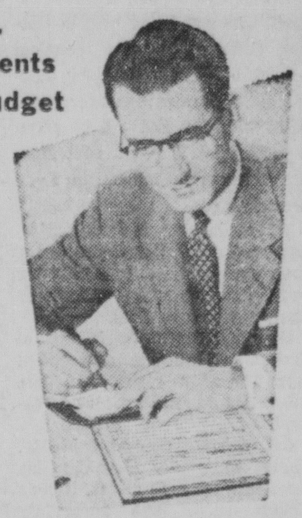

Street Commissioner John J. Long explained that since the date a lease was signed, the city has limited dumping of salvageable material by approximately 50 per cent.

The lease is to be amended to include the new rental.

Rawlings Man Sentenced On Motor Counts

A Rawlings driver was sentenced to three months in the Allegany County Jail and fined $250 and costs on three motor vehicle violations yesterday.

Trial Magistrate Morris Baron sentenced the man, William Walter Flanagan, 24, Rawlings, after finding him guilty of operating under the influence, reckless driving and failing to identify himself after striking a parked car.

Flanagan was arrested Saturday night by City Officers Royce Clayton and Harold Gibson after he struck a parked car on North Centre Street.

Officers said approximately $1,000 damage was caused to the parked vehicle.

Police said when they arrived at the scene they noticed a puddle of oil from the Flanagan car. They trailed the oil out Centre Street, across Market Street, and out Fayette Street to the Dingle Hill.

City Police then notified State Police who apprehended the man in Bowling Green.

Flanagan entered a plea of guilty to all three charges. He indicated he would appeal the jail sentence, Magistrate Baron said.

Two Minors Are Committed

A 16-year-old local girl and a 15-year-old local boy were ordered committed to training schools yesterday in Juvenile Court.

Magistrate Fred H. Anderson found the two, along with another young couple, guilty of being delinquent minors.

The second young couple was placed on probation and ordered by Magistrate Anderson not to date each other.

The 16-year-old girl was sent to the House of Good Shepherd near Baltimore. Court attaches noted she was only recently released from the institution.

The 15-year-old boy was sentenced to the Maryland Training School for Boys. Magistrate Anderson said the boy had been on parole in the past and was also guilty of violating his parole.

The four teen-agers were arrested by City Police in the early morning hours of March 31 when they were involved in a one-car accident at the corner of Decatur and Frederick streets.

Police said the teen-agers had stolen the car earlier from 24 Ridgeway Terrace. The driver of the car lost control turning from Decatur onto Frederick and crashed into a utility pole. The car was demolished.

It will take you about 4 minutes to find out why

It Pays to Own a Dodge!

(It could save you hundreds of dollars!)

Okay, it's settled. You've thought about it and talked about it and now you've decided: A new car--and soon. Now for the jackpot question. Which '59 car will it be?

Unless you happen to be a Mr. Gotrocks, you'll probably think pretty carefully before you finally make the move. You'll do more shopping and compare more closely. And you'll ask yourself some basic questions. How much will a new car cost me to buy? How much will it cost me to drive? What do I get for my money?

There is no mystery about new car prices

Until this year, it was hard to compare different makes of cars to find which offered the most value for the money. It was like comparing apples and bananas. But not any more. Not since all new cars are required to carry price labels. Now, for the first time, you can compare various makes and models and see exactly what you're getting for your money. It's like exposing the hole cards in a game of stud poker: You know exactly where you stand.

Why should you buy a Dodge?

No one has to tell you that there are a number of cars on the market that sell for less than a Dodge. No cigar on that count. You know it and we know it. But there are things you get in a Dodge that you simply can't get in these other smaller cars.

And this is important. Dodge gives you all of these things—the bigness and roominess, the comfort and ride, the luxury and prestige—for less than other cars in its field.

It's not just a few dollars less, either; in many cases it's literally hundreds of dollars less. Some Dodge models are even priced lower than the so-called "low-priced cars." (We'll be happy to show you the actual suggested retail prices.)

All cars cost money to run—but how much?

It would be nice if you just bought a new car and that was that. It didn't burn gas. Didn't use oil. Never needed service. But that's wishful thinking. Cars do use gas and oil. They do need service occasionally. But that doesn't mean that all cars cost the same to drive and maintain. Not by a jugful. There's a big difference.

Dodge is designed to run for less

Dodge has always had a reputation for economical operation. People who have owned them have found it costs less to run a Dodge, and that a Dodge needs service less often.

Take gasoline economy. The new Dodge 326 cu. in. Red Ram V-8 engine, because of its design and efficiency, will take you miles farther on a gallon of gas than any other V-8 in the Dodge field. You save money every mile you drive.

But that's only part of the story. The way Dodge is engineered and built saves you money on such things as engine wear, brake relining, tune-ups, spark plug replacement. When you add them all up, they represent quite a saving. Another reason why it pays to own a Dodge.

What do you get for what you pay?

According to Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Prices, Dodge generally costs less, model for model, than other cars in its field. Fine and dandy. But while price is important, it isn't the only consideration. The real standard of value—whether you're buying a new car or a can of beans—is what you get for what you pay. It's the "extras" you get at no extra cost that really determine which car is the best buy.

Dodge gives you more for less

Talk is cheap. Anyone can make claims. So let's be specific about the extras you get in Dodge at no extra cost. Torsion-Aire Ride—conceded the finest suspension in the industry—standard equipment on all Dodge models. Total-Contact Brakes, Safety-Rim Wheels, Electric Windshield Wipers, Independent Parking Brake—all standard on Dodge. Of course, you can also choose from such Dodge options as Push-Button Driving, Full-Time Power Steering and Swing-Out Swivel Seats.

There's a big difference in comfort, too

Goodness knows, we certainly don't want to knock competition. But we feel obligated to point out the comfort and convenience of the '59 Dodge. If you've tried getting into some of the other '59 cars you know just what we mean. That's why we hope you'll come in and compare the difference in Dodge. How much easier it is to get in and out of a Dodge. How much more comfortable it is to sit in a Dodge. How much more room you have to stretch out.

It doesn't cost a penny to get the facts

We don't expect you to rush in and plunk down your money for a new Dodge just on the basis of what you've read. But if what you've read seems to make sense, we do hope you'll stop in to see, to drive and to price a Dodge. We think it's a whale of a buy, but then maybe we're prejudiced. Why not drop in and judge for yourself. We'll be more than happy to give you all the facts. No obligation, of course.

Firemen Receive Special Praise For Recent Efforts

Charles Scarlett, Present City Aide, Seeks Engineering Assistant's Post

A present City Engineering Department employe who says he previously qualified for the position, asked the Mayor and Council yesterday to appoint him as assistant city engineer.

The request was contained in a letter from Charles R. Scarlett, 1704 Holland Street, a draftsman in the department.

Council has indicated it will appoint one assistant city engineer soon from an eligible list provided by the Civil Service Commission after recent examinations. The apparent choice, according to council sources, is Franklin T. Blaney of Wadsworth, Ohio. Mayor J. Edwin Keech said last week it is hoped to have the assistant on duty by June.

Council, meanwhile, has authority to appoint two assistants depending on the need and whether it has sufficient funds to pay the salaries.

At the suggestion of Street Commissioner John J. Long, council has agreed to give Scarlett an interview and hear his further explanation of the letter submitted yesterday. Long said it is "only fair" to have the interview with Scarlett. He said Scarlett is an employe and is already entitled to consideration.

In his letter, Scarlett reviewed events leading up to his request. He said in 1952, Charles R. Nuzum, then newly-appointed as city engineer, offered him the position of draftsman. Scarlett said he refused until Nuzum gave his personal guarantee that when William H. Marean retired as assistant city engineer, Scarlett would be named to replace him.

Scarlett said since 1955 he has been doing assistant city engineer duties on an unofficial basis and on various occasions and for extensive periods during absence of the city engineer, the responsibility of the Engineering Department has fallen on his shoulders.

Scarlett did not take the most recent assistant engineer exam and his name is not on the new list of eligibles, City Hall sources said.

The lease is to be amended to include the new rental.

It will take you about 4 minutes to find out why

It Pays to Own a Dodge!

(It could save you hundreds of dollars!)

Okay, it's settled. You've thought about it and talked about it and now you've decided: A new car—and soon. Now for the jackpot question. Which '59 car will it be?

Unless you happen to be a Mr. Gotrocks, you'll probably think pretty carefully before you finally make the move. You'll do more shopping and compare more closely. And you'll ask yourself some basic questions. How much will a new car cost me to buy? How much will it cost me to drive? What do I get for my money?

There is no mystery about new car prices

Until this year, it was hard to compare different makes of cars to find which offered the most value for the money. It was like comparing apples and bananas. But not any more. Not since all new cars are required to carry price labels. Now, for the first time, you can compare various makes and models and see exactly what you're getting for your money. It's like exposing the hole cards in a game of stud poker: You know exactly where you stand.

Why should you buy a Dodge?

No one has to tell you that there are a number of cars on the market that sell for less than a Dodge. No cigar on that count. You know it and we know it. But there are things you get in a Dodge that you simply can't get in these other smaller cars.

And this is important. Dodge gives you all of these things—the bigness and roominess, the comfort and ride, the luxury and prestige—for less than other cars in its field.

It's not just a few dollars less, either; in many cases it's literally hundreds of dollars less. Some Dodge models are even priced lower than the so-called "low-priced cars." (We'll be happy to show you the actual suggested retail prices.)

All cars cost money to run—but how much?

It would be nice if you just bought a new car and that was that. It didn't burn gas. Didn't use oil. Never needed service. But that's wishful thinking. Cars do use gas and oil. They do need service occasionally. But that doesn't mean that all cars cost the same to drive and maintain. Not by a jugful. There's a big difference.

Dodge is designed to run for less

Dodge has always had a reputation for economical operation. People who have owned them have found it costs less to run a Dodge, and that a Dodge needs service less often.

Take gasoline economy. The new Dodge 325 cu. in. Red Ram V-8 engine, because of its design and efficiency, will take you miles farther on a gallon of gas than any other V-8 in the Dodge field. You save money every mile you drive.

But that's only part of the story. The way Dodge is engineered and built saves you money on such things as engine wear, brake relining, tune-ups, spark plug replacement. When you add them all up, they represent quite a saving. Another reason why it pays to own a Dodge.

What do you get for what you pay?

According to Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Prices, Dodge generally costs less, model for model, than other cars in its field. Fine and dandy. But while price is important, it isn't the only consideration. The real standard of value—whether you're buying a new car or a can of beans—is what you get for what you pay. It's the "extras" you get at no extra cost that really determine which car is the best buy.

Dodge gives you more for less

Talk is cheap. Anyone can make claims. So let's be specific about the extras you get in Dodge at no extra cost. Torsion-Aire Ride—conceded the finest suspension in the industry—standard equipment on all Dodge models. Total-Contact Brakes, Safety-Rim Wheels, Electric Windshield Wipers, Independent Parking Brake—all standard on Dodge. Of course, you can also choose from such Dodge options as Push-Button Driving, Full-Time Power Steering and Swing-Out Swivel Seats.

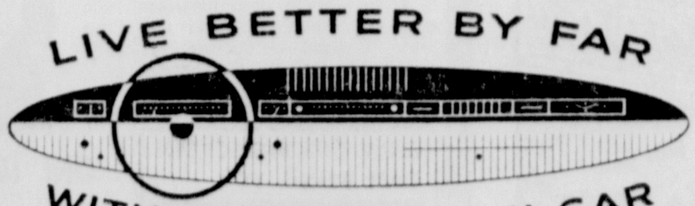

There's a big difference in comfort, too

Goodness knows, we certainly don't want to knock competition. But we feel obligated to point out the comfort and convenience of the '59 Dodge. If you've tried getting into some of the other '59 cars you know just what we mean. That's why we hope you'll come in and compare the difference in Dodge. How much easier it is to get in and out of a Dodge. How much more comfortable it is to sit in a Dodge. How much more room you have to stretch out.

It doesn't cost a penny to get the facts

We don't expect you to rush in and plunk down your money for a new Dodge just on the basis of what you've read. But if what you've read seems to make sense, we do hope you'll stop in to see, to drive and to price a Dodge. We think it's a whale of a buy, but then maybe we're prejudiced. Why not drop in and judge for yourself. We'll be more than happy to give you all the facts. No obligation, of course.

W. Dwight Stover, state's attorney in Garrett County, said the case can be tried in the lower court and the state or defense can pray a jury trial.

Police Chief Charles Spiker of Piedmont said the alleged assault occurred at 7:10 p. m. as the two girls were on their way to a store. He said the boys jumped out of an alley and grabbed the two girls, who screamed and scared them away.

The next day the two boys were arrested by Chief Spiker and Police Officer Robert Mongold.

Winchester Loan Office Robbed

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP)—Roadblocks were set up in Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland Monday afternoon after the Household Finance Co. here was robbed of an undetermined amount of money.

Winchester Police Chief J. Thomas Boyd said two white men, both about 25 years old, entered the loan firm's office shortly after 4 p. m. One was carrying what was believed to have been a .25 caliber automatic pistol.

Boyd said the men took some company money and then robbed four employes and a customer. They then tied up the employes and the customer with wire and walked out. One of the victims later got loose and untied the other four.

The Rewards Of Economic Virtue

If President Eisenhower has been tempted, at times, to yield a little ground to the budget unbalancers, the news from London must have hardened his resolution. The British people have just had about the pleasantest experience that has come their way since the end of World War II.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Heathcoat Amory, presenting his budget to the Commons, told them that Britain's finances are in such good shape taxes can be cut about a billion dollars next year.

The British budget will call for an outlay of nearly $16 billion and Britons will still be paying high taxes. But even a little relief will be highly welcome in a country that has been practicing austerity for two decades. Moreover, the result should be good economically—because consumers will doubtless spend the money for things they want and production of goods will thereby be stimulated.

It is good news for Britons, too, that the British pound has now been placed on a sound foundation. Amory could say with considerable pride that "sterling is again in a position to play to the full its immensely important role as a reserve currency for the world."

How has all this been brought about? It should not be forgotten that it was an economic crisis that brought the Conservatives to power and that the Conservative government has had the courage to take the painful steps required to set things to rights.

In fighting for a balanced budget, President Eisenhower has seemed to be taking an unpopular course. Now he can point to Britain's experience as evidence that there are rewards for a country that treads the path of economic virtue. He can argue that it is worth while to resist inflation because to win that battle is in everybody's interest.

Soviet Anti-Semitism

Soviet anti-Semitism, as expressed by Stalin and Khrushchev, is normal to the Russian environment. Khrushchev, who hails from the Russo-Ukrainian border, lived in the most anti-Semitic area in the world. It was in this region that the notorious Kishinev massacres occurred.

But there is a further matter that cannot be ignored: Karl Marx, although born of Jews, was himself a vicious anti-Semite, a hater of his own people. On this subject, a book has recently been published by The Wisdom Library, entitled "Karl Max—a World Without Jews." Dagobert D. Runes who writes an introduction to this miserable volume says:

". . . in the middle of the nineteenth century anti-Semitism was mainly a religious and social, not a racial, issue, and among converts such as Karl Marx are to be found vitriolic enemies of Judaism. The convert as a tool in the hands of professional Jew baiters is to be found as early as the Middle Ages in the person of the Jew Pfefferkorn who assisted in attempts to put Jewish sacred literature to the torch. And little more than ten years ago in the Soviet Union, the Jew Ilya Ehrenburg led the attack against Jewish writers as being cosmopolitan, non-patriotic and Zionist. This he did at the grave of almost eight hundred Yiddish poets, writers, and novelists who had been executed at the behest of Stalin."

Karl Marx descended from a rabbinical family but his father, Herchel Marx, accepted Christianity in 1816 in order to practice law in Prussia—a state in which no Jew could then practice law. In a word, Marx's father was converted to Christianity for economic reasons. This is Karl Marx's solution to the problem of the Jewish religion:

"The stiffest form of opposition between Jew and Christian is religious. How is it to be resolved? By making it impossible. How can this be achieved? By abolishing religion. As soon as Jew and Christian recognize their respective religions as different stages in the evolution of the human spirit, as successive snake-skins shed by history—man being the snake that bore them all—they will no longer stand in a religious relationship to each other, but in a critical, scientific, human relationship . . ."

What Marx thought of religion is perhaps best stated in these lines:

". . . . But since the existence of religion is the existence of a defect, the source of this defect can be sought only in the nature of the state. We hold that religion is no longer the operating cause but the result of human limitation. We therefore derive the religious small-mindness of free citizens from their general small-mindedness. We do not maintain that they must abolish their religious limitations in order to abolish their human limitations. We do not turn secular problems into religious ones; we turn religious questions into secular ones. History has too long been dissolved into superstitions: we now dissolve superstitions into history . . ."

". . . The Jew has emancipated himself in the Jewish fashion not only by acquiring money power but through money's having become (with him or without him) the world power and the Jewish spirit's having become the practical spirit of the Christian peoples. The Jews have emancipated themselves to the extent that Christians have become Jews."

How false this is appears in the poverty of most European Jews, a poverty which Karl Marx knew and experienced. In fact, many of his colleagues in the International Workingmen's Association were poletarian Jews. In the pages of this pamphlet, which I hold in my hands as I write this, are some of the most vicious and historically untruthful statements which Karl Marx makes about his own people, as, for instance:

"The monotheism of the Jew is therefore actually a polytheism of many needs, and it makes even renunciation the object of divine law. Practical need, egotism, is the underlying principle of bourgeois society and is recognizable as such immediately this society sets up its own political state. The god of practical needs and private interest is money."

No bigot, no professional money-raising Jew-hater has ever written anything as terrible as Karl Marx has about Jews. He talks much like those queer creatures in our own society who, having changed their names, labor to be what they are not.

Mexican President Boosts Small Cars To Cope With Traffic Jams

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note — Another Pearson report from the Caribbean comes from one of our more stable neighbors, Mexico.)

MEXICO CITY — President Adolfo Lopez Mateos is an ex-schoolteacher who likes to get up early. As a boy he had to walk seven miles to school and seven miles back but he got there on time. As President of Mexico he also believes in getting to work on time, and he wants other bureaucrats to do the same.

And when he found that a lot of his officials didn't arrive promptly at 8:30 a. m., he complained about it. Their reply was: traffic jams.

So, the other day, Lopez Mateos did something about relieving traffic. He ordered a drastic cut in the tariff on small automobiles. Big cars still pay the same tarif. But little cars that don't take up so much room on the crowded streets of Mexico get a tariff break.

Two American cars are affected: the Nash Rambler which has been cut $756 in price; and the Studebaker Lark which has been cut $705. Of the 14 European small cars which benefit, several will now cost less in Mexico than they do in the United States. These include General Motors' Opel, manufactured in Germany, and its British Vauxhall, as well as Ford's English Anglia.

On the other hand, a Cadillac El Dorado convertible sells for $38,000 while the Mexican price for a Continental hard-top is $25,000. This contrasts with the Lark and the Rambler which sell in Mexico for $2,494 and $2,270 respectively. The President of Mexico just doesn't fancy big cars cluttering up the highways.

Pope John On Latin America

Pope John XXIII confided to a leading Latin American, ex-President Galo Plaza of Ecuador, recently that he planned to effect a total revision of Catholic Church policies throughout Latin America.

The Pope was quite blunt in criticizing Church authorities in Latin America for failing to join in the world-wide religious revival and "not maintaining true spiritual contact with the faithful."

He noted that undue political activity by the Church — especially in Argentina, Colombia, Peru and Chile — had been responsible for the loss of prestige and influence.

The happiest and most fruitful relations between the Church and any Latin-American people, the Pontiff said, were in Mexico where there has been a rigid separation between church and state and where the Catholic clergy has kept strictly out of politics for 30 years.

Pope John expressed the hope that other Latin-American church leaders might follow Mexico's example.

Building Friendship

The visits of President Eisenhower and Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas to Acapulco gave a big boost to American-Mexican friendship. Both met in the glare of world-wide publicity and both got an enthusiastic reception.

While Ike was in Acupulco, however, another event took place in another part of Mexico, without headlines, which also built American friendship.

At the little mountain town of San Mateo Atenco a group of Mexicans and representatives of CARE and the American Friends Service Committee gathered to begin drilling a well. Throughout the centuries, San Mateo Atenco has had no well. Water has been obtained from digging crude holes in the soil, which with a density of 582 people per square mile and only three latrines in the entire village, has caused a 70 per cent incidence of intestinal parasites from drinking water.

So $10,000 was raised by CARE and the American Friends Service Committee to buy a modern well-drilling rig. And four young Quakers with engineering degrees came to Mexico to operate it. They are: Richard Downham of Media, Pa.; Karl Fagg of La Verne, Calif.; Knowles Daugherty of Austin, Minn., and Von Peacock of Winchester, Ind. Like other Friends volunteers who have been working in Mexico, they receive no salary, buy their own food and clothing, and live in two rooms rented from a local family.

So while Ike cruised on the yacht Satavento in scenic Acapulco Bay, a crowd of Mexican townspeople gathered at San Mateo Atenco to watch the first well being dug. It was no curious crowd of onlookers hooraying for a gringo handout. Everyone there had chipped in to help. The Catholic priest had donated the offerings he had saved to remodel his church. The neighborhood orchestra had raised money night after night at community dances. The Americans had contributed the well rig, but the Mexicans had raised the money for casing, capping and finishing the well. It was a joint project.

And there in the brilliant sunshine, as Daugherty threw the switch and the long shaft plunged smoothly into the dry earth, a great cheer went up from the townspeople.

"Viva CARE! Viva Friends! Viva United States!" they cried. The neighborhood orchestra struck up the Mexican national anthem. Church bells tolled. Homemade fireworks crackled into the blue sky.

It was an event which did not make such a widespread impression as the press conference Jim Hagerty was holding to say that the two Presidents had discussed many things but reached no specific agreements. But it will make a longer impression. For water from this well will flow on through the years.

Unions Need U. S. Help To Curb Racketeers

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON, April 13 — The American people may not realize it yet, but the Congress isn't going to do anything at this session that really will put an end to the racketeering in labor unions. This is already conceded privately by the leaders on both sides.

Actually, none of the proposed measures, even if passed, would eliminate the corruption that has been exposed at the hearings conducted by Senator McClellan and his committee.

One of the most significant comments has just come from George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO. In an interview in the current issue of "Dun's Review and Modern Industry," Mr. Meany pointed out that the unions alone cannot stop the abuses. Here is an excerpt:

"Q. Do you believe that the labor legislation now pending in the Congress will provide adequate power to curb these abuses?

"A. Adequate power? Frankly, these abuses could not be stopped by the unions alone. The trade-union movement is trying to do what it can in this field. We think we have some moral responsibility to do this. But the AFL-CIO has no legal responsibility to curb corruption in union locals. We aren't a law-enforcement agency, and we don't have the power of subpoena. We couldn't possibly call a trade-union official before our council and say, 'We are suspicious; we don't like the way things are going.' Certainly we would not hesitate to take action where we had proof of wrongdoing or corruption. But we must have the proof, and we haven't got the machinery to go out and make these investigations.

"So, to answer your question, we don't feel that the requirements of the Kennedy-Ervin Bill would eliminate corruption. We do think it would curb some of these people because they will have to report all their financial transactions. We think the Kennedy-Ervin Bill is a step in the right direction, but the real problem of corruption is the failure of the law-enforcement authorities to act. The juke-box and coin-machine business points it up quite clearly. Here's one of our big industries, in the billion-dollar class, and it's honeycombed with gangsters and thugs operating with the connivance of greedy business men and with the cognizance of the law-enforcement authorities.

"It is quite obvious that the real answer to corruption, whether in unions or anywhere else, is better law enforcement. Nobody runs to the American Bankers Association every time a cashier defaults or somebody on the inside robs a bank—they expect the local district attorney to handle that. When companies engage in business frauds, nobody runs to the Chamber of Commerce or the National Association of Manufacturers and says, 'What are you going to do about law enforcement?' No, they expect the local district attorney to do it."

This correspondent read the foregoing quotation to Senator McClellan and asked him for his opinion on it. The Arkansas Senator said:

"They say they do not have the power, and that is correct. They can't stop a Hoffa. That's why laws are needed. If they had the power, and would be diligent in exercising it, we probably wouldn't need additional laws, or so many laws. But they cannot deal with people like Hoffa, and it's imperative that we enact laws to at least curb—you never completely prevent crime of any kind.

"Q. I wonder why the local district attorneys haven't done more on this?

"A. I think the simple answer to that is, politics. They control—just like they control an industry or control an operation. They have the political power where they control often the people in public office.

"Q. You mean the unions do?

"A. Sure. Or the union racketeers—that element in them. There's no question about that."

All this points up to the fact that labor unions are not at all analogous to trade associations or groups of businesses. The labor unions have a monopoly power. They get it out of existing laws and also out of the refusal of Congress to include labor unions as within the jurisdiction of antimonopoly or antitrust laws.

Labor unions have not only a monopoly power in being able to fix wages in an entire industry, but they have a monopoly power with respect to memberships. In some lines, they can prevent an applicant from getting a job. They can force a member out of a union through various devices and deprive him of his means of livelihood.

This type of potential coercion makes it difficult for anyone who is aware of corruption to give testimony to the law-enforcement authorities for fear of punishment by union officials. No such power over the individual is held by any other trade organization or private association of any kind.

Obviously it is the duty of states to preserve order and punish crimes within their borders. But when wrongdoing is of an interstate character—and virtually all the unions have been placed under interstate commerce by acts of Congress and by judicial decisions — it would appear that ultimately federal legislation will be necessary. In fact, Congress enacted several years ago the first of its anti-racketeering statutes, and these have never been held to be an improper exercise of federal authority.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

If it weren't so deadly, the cold war could aptly be compared with a couple of kids getting ready for a schoolyard fight.

There is the name-calling, the threats of dire consequences, the drawing of lines and daring each other to step across, and the unwillingness of either adversary to show the slightest sign of weakness.

Trouble with the comparison is that instead of the parties risking a black eye or bloody nose, each has the potential to destroy the other, along with himself and the rest of the onlooking world.

This is the atmosphere as the opposing parties prepare to meet to try to settle their differences. That it is not conducive to fair settlements is probably the understatement of the decade.

As Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev carries the wand of peace like a javelin, western leaders cannot but have second thoughts about walking up that summit to meet him. In fairness to the Russians, one must observe that as Khrushchev looks to the world around him he sees few faces glowing with the light of friendship.

Yet, the foreign ministers' conference in Geneva in May and the summit meeting which may follow this summer can play outstanding roles in preserving world peace, even if no great concrete results are achieved.

The meeting can, and probably will, give the adversaries a breathing spell, a time to reflect on the consequences of any brash act. It could well be the delay needed to give both kids a way to avoid stepping across that line.

Dark, Bloody Ground

By Joseph Alsop

MADISON, Wisconsin

Barring unforeseen developments, Wisconsin is due to be the dark and bloody ground of the Democrats in 1960. Here the battle of the candidates will first be joined, long before the Democratic nominating convention.

After a Siberian winter, this little state capital looks weather-worn but outwardly tranquil. Yet here in Madison, as elsewhere in the state, you can already hear the advance rumblings of the conflict that lies ahead. For instance, the astute young Democratic Governor, Gaylord Nelson, is already rather nervously proclaiming that his party's Wisconsin primary has got to be a free and fair fight, with all holds barred, and no unkindly feelings about the outcome.

Nelson has good reason to start talking early, too. The present front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, stormed into Milwaukee on Thursday, and he has been attracting capacity crowds ever since. The other active Democratic candidate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, is coming very soon.

The principal contestants look eager for the fray, but they are not. Sen. Humphrey did not want to fight for Wisconsin because of the fairly strong possibility of defeat. Hence Humphrey's political partner, Gov. Orville Freeman of Minnesota, tried to wrap up Wisconsin by the favorite-son device, with the held of his friend, Gov. Nelson. That did not work, and now Humphrey has made up his mind to fight. But Sen. Kennedy is now having his second thoughts. Kennedy wonders whether he needs to risk his massive support in other states in a messy, chancy Wisconsin primary.

All the same, the logic of the situations of the two active Democratic candidates makes them the fore-ordained victims of one another. The inactive candidates may remain inactive, but Humphrey and Kennedy are all but forced to fight it out.

Outside his home territory, Humphrey has almost no solid support anywhere. Furthermore, his nomination will drive large numbers of Southerners out of the party. Hence he must decisively prove his magnetism by defeating the front-runner Kennedy in one or more primaries. If he shirks the test, Humphrey must finally give up his presidential aspirations.

Kennedy, by the same token, has very widespread support. But Kennedy still needs something extra to overcome his two handicaps, his Catholicism and his unnaturally youthful appearance. The surest way for Kennedy to get that something extra is to show his stuff in one or more primaries; and Wisconsin is a tempting place to begin. There are other reasons, too, why Wisconsin is a natural battleground. For one thing the old state of Joseph R. McCarthy is now one of the new states of the resurgent Democratic party. Partly this is because most of the old La-Follette Progressives, whom young Bob LaFollette fruitlessly led into the Republican party in 1946, have now transferred again to the Democratic ranks. Partly this is also because the McCarthy wing of the Republican party here has put on the best imitation of the Gadarene swine since the day the swine themselves frothed at the mouth and ran over the cliff.

Mainly, however, the Democratic triumph in Wisconsin has to be credited to able younger men of the type who have achieved the party's post-Truman rebirth in many other states besides Wisconsin. Gov. Nelson, Sen. Proxmire, State Chairman Pat Lucey, and many more, have worked hard and long, beginning nowhere. Their rewards have been the governorship, a majority in the lower house of the state legislature, half the Wisconsin Congressional seats and one of the Senate seats. Thus Wisconsin is now a meaningful scene for a Democratic presidential test.

In addition, Wisconsin should afford a fair test between Kennedy and Humphrey. Superficially, to be sure, the locals of the duel would seem to favor Humphrey. The Wisconsin pattern, of a union between the original Democrats and the LaFollette Progressives, is closely similar to the Minnesota pattern of a Democratic-Farmer Labor Alliance, which Humphrey helped to bring about. When both Wisconsin Senators were Republicans, many local Democrats actually treated Humphrey of Minnesota as their own Senator. Moreover, Humphrey has powerful support in the labor groups, in the farm cooperatives, and in the rural electrification associations.

Rather surprisingly, however, Kennedy still quite clearly has the edge, at least as of now. A majority of the Wisconsin politicians are leaning his way. Even those who are for Humphrey tell you, "Yes, Kennedy's ahead today, but wait and see how it shapes up after Humphrey has done some of his old-fashioned, hard-sell campaigning in the state.

Part of Kennedy's edge derives from Wisconsin's high percentage of Roman Catholics. But in the main, according to the local politicians, the Kennedy edge has to be attributed to his remarkable general appeal to all groups in the voting rank and file. If the appeal does not weaken, that is a pretty useful sort of edge to have.

Some Aggressiveness Normal In Children

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

It has been said that wars might disappear if aggressiveness in children could be eliminated. This is too much to expect because aggressiveness is an essential ingredient of personality.

Some children have more vigor and spunk than others, which is evident almost from the day they are born. It is not natural for a child to be meek and obedient most of the time. Docile youngsters ought to be encouraged to become less timid by pointing out the advantages of fighting for their rights.

The average child soon learns to be aggressive to get what he wants when he wants it. It is this urge that drives the infant to roll over, pull himself up, walk, and climb. The same stimulus leads Billy to snatch a toy from Johnny; Johnny retaliates by snatching it right back or knocking down his opponent. If this behavior were not natural, children would cease to grow beyond the helplessness of infancy.

Their aggressiveness runs into obstacles in time. They are neither strong enough nor clever enough to get everything they want. Their parents may punish them when certain things are done and in this way they learn to fall into line because they want to please Dad and Mother.

Children need to express their feelings but there is a limit to how far they can go. The child who fights his playmates most of the time is showing too much hostility. The same can be said of the toddler who tortures animals, bites his companions, destroys everything in sight, and kicks and screams whenever rebuked. Something should be done, especially when the little monster hurts himself or other children.

These boys and girls are not bad; they are unhappy because they feel unloved and insecure and are riddled with anxiety. Parents should try to understand their problem and give them the tender love and attention on which they thrive.

TOMORROW: Greasy skin.

TREMBLER

R. L. writes: What can I do to keep my hands from shaking whenever I eat or drink in front of anyone?

REPLY

If this symptom occurs only in the presence of others, it is of nervous origin. If you cannot develop more poise, try to disregard the shaking. Another suggestion is to regard the trembling as a conversation piece and call it to everyone's attention in a joking fashion.

HEREDITY AND MS

Mrs. J. G. writes: Two of my sisters were victims of multiple sclerosis. On and off for two years my legs have become tense and this feeling is getting worse. When I get home from work I put a heating pad on the legs, which helps. Do you think this feeling of tenseness is the beginning of multiple sclerosis?

REPLY

No, but I can understand your concern, with the disease so close to home. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on multiple sclerosis.

PLASMIN FOR CLOTS

R. N. writes: Will the plasmin you wrote about recently for blood clots help a person who had a stroke a year ago?

REPL Y

No. By this time, the clot has dissolved or turned into fibrous tissue. The use of plasmin still is experimental.

HAIR AND HEREDITY

Mrs. P. N. writes: Why does the hair of some children grow faster and thicker than others?

REPLY

Heredity plays a role. Those with beautiful hair may give credit to their grandparents.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

The Rewards Of Economic Virtue

If President Eisenhower has been tempted, at times, to yield a little ground to the budget unbalancers, the news from London must have hardened his resolution. The British people have just had about the pleasantest experience that has come their way since the end of World War II.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Heathcoat Amory, presenting his budget to the Commons, told them that Britain's finances are in such good shape taxes can be cut about a billion dollars next year.

The British budget will call for an outlay of nearly $16 billion and Britons will still be paying high taxes. But even a little relief will be highly welcome in a country that has been practicing austerity for two decades. Moreover, the result should be good economically—because consumers will doubtless spend the money for things they want and production of goods will thereby be stimulated.

It is good news for Britons, too, that the British pound has now been placed on a sound foundation. Amory could say with considerable pride that "sterling is again in a position to play to the full its immensely important role as a reserve currency for the world."

How has all this been brought about? It should not be forgotten that it was an economic crisis that brought the Conservatives to power and that the Conservative government has had the courage to take the painful steps required to set things to rights.

In fighting for a balanced budget, President Eisenhower has seemed to be taking an unpopular course. Now he can point to Britain's experience as evidence that there are rewards for a country that treads the path of economic virtue. He can argue that it is worth while to resist inflation because to win that battle is in everybody's interest.

"Q. You mean the unions do?

"A. Sure. Or the union racketeers—that element in them. There's no question about that."

All this points up to the fact that labor unions are not at all analogous to trade associations or groups of businesses. The labor unions have a monopoly power. They get it out of existing laws and also out of the refusal of Congress to include labor unions as within the jurisdiction of antimonopoly or antitrust laws.

Labor unions have not only a monopoly power in being able to fix wages in an entire industry, but they have a monopoly power with respect to memberships. In some lines, they can prevent an applicant from getting a job. They can force a member out of a union through various devices and deprive him of his means of livelihood.

This type of potential coercion makes it difficult for anyone who is aware of corruption to give testimony to the law-enforcement authorities for fear of punishment by union officials. No such power over the individual is held by any other trade organization or private association of any kind.

Obviously it is the duty of states to preserve order and punish crimes within their borders. But when wrongdoing is of an interstate character—and virtually all the unions have been placed under interstate commerce by acts of Congress and by judicial decisions — it would appear that ultimately federal legislation will be necessary. In fact, Congress enacted several years ago the first of its anti-racketeering statutes, and these have never been held to be an improper exercise of federal authority.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

If it weren't so deadly, the cold war could aptly be compared with a couple of kids getting ready for a schoolyard fight.

There is the name-calling, the threats of dire consequences, the drawing of lines and daring each other to step across, and the unwillingness of either adversary to show the slightest sign of weakness.

Trouble with the comparison is that instead of the parties risking a black eye or bloody nose, each has the potential to destroy the other, along with himself and the rest of the onlooking world.

This is the atmosphere as the opposing parties prepare to meet to try to settle their differences. That it is not conducive to fair settlements is probably the understatement of the decade.

As Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev carries the wand of peace like a javelin, western leaders cannot but have second thoughts about walking up that summit to meet him. In fairness to the Russians, one must observe that as Khrushchev looks to the world around him he sees few faces glowing with the light of friendship.

Yet, the foreign ministers' conference in Geneva in May and the summit meeting which may follow this summer can play outstanding roles in preserving world peace, even if no great concrete results are achieved.

The meeting can, and probably will, give the adversaries a breathing spell, a time to reflect on the consequences of any brash act. It could well be the delay needed to give both kids a way to avoid stepping across that line.

Some Aggressiveness Normal In Children

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

It has been said that wars might disappear if aggressiveness in children could be eliminated. This is too much to expect because aggressiveness is an essential ingredient of personality.

Some children have more vigor and spunk than others, which is evident almost from the day they are born. It is not natural for a child to be meek and obedient most of the time. Docile youngsters ought to be encouraged to become less timid by pointing out the advantages of fighting for their rights.

The average child soon learns to be aggressive to get what he wants when he wants it. It is this urge that drives the infant to roll over, pull himself up, walk, and climb. The same stimulus leads Billy to snatch a toy from Johnny; Johnny retaliates by snatching it right back or knocking down his opponent. If this behavior were not natural, children would cease to grow beyond the helplessness of infancy.

Their aggressiveness runs into obstacles in time. They are neither strong enough nor clever enough to get everything they want. Their parents may punish them when certain things are done and in this way they learn to fall into line because they want to please Dad and Mother.

Children need to express their feelings but there is a limit to how far they can go. The child who fights his playmates most of the time is showing too much hostility. The same can be said of the toddler who tortures animals, bites his companions, destroys everything in sight, and kicks and screams whenever rebuked. Something should be done, especially when the little monster hurts himself or other children.

These boys and girls are not bad; they are unhappy because they feel unloved and insecure and are riddled with anxiety. Parents should try to understand their problem and give them the tender love and attention on which they thrive.

TOMORROW: Greasy skin.

TREMBLER

R. L. writes: What can I do to keep my hands from shaking whenever I eat or drink in front of anyone?

REPLY

If this symptom occurs only in the presence of others, it is of nervous origin. If you cannot develop more poise, try to disregard the shaking. Another suggestion is to regard the trembling as a conversation piece and call it to everyone's attention in a joking fashion.

HEREDITY AND MS

Mrs. J. G. writes: Two of my sisters were victims of multiple sclerosis. On and off for two years my legs have become tense and this feeling is getting worse. When I get home from work I put a heating pad on the legs, which helps. Do you think this feeling of tenseness is the beginning of multiple sclerosis?

REPLY

No, but I can understand your concern, with the disease so close to home. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on multiple sclerosis.

PLASMIN FOR CLOTS

R. N. writes: Will the plasmin you wrote about recently for blood clots help a person who had a stroke a year ago?

REPL Y

No. By this time, the clot has dissolved or turned into fibrous tissue. The use of plasmin still is experimental.

HAIR AND HEREDITY

Mrs. P. N. writes: Why does the hair of some children grow faster and thicker than others?

REPLY

Heredity plays a role. Those with beautiful hair may give credit to their grandparents.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Mexican President Boosts Small Cars To Cope With Traffic Jams

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note — Another Pearson report from the Caribbean comes from one of our more stable neighbors, Mexico.)

MEXICO CITY — President Adolfo Lopez Mateos is an ex-schoolteacher who likes to get up early. As a boy he had to walk seven miles to school and seven miles back but he got there on time. As President of Mexico he also believes in getting to work on time, and he wants other bureaucrats to do the same.

And when he found that a lot of his officials didn't arrive promptly at 8:30 a. m., he complained about it. Their reply was: traffic jams.

So, the other day, Lopez Mateos did something about relieving traffic. He ordered a drastic cut in the tariff on small automobiles. Big cars still pay the same tarif. But little cars that don't take up so much room on the crowded streets of Mexico get a tariff break.

Two American cars are affected: the Nash Rambler which has been cut $756 in price; and the Studebaker Lark which has been cut $705. Of the 14 European small cars which benefit, several will now cost less in Mexico than they do in the United States. These include General Motors' Opel, manufactured in Germany, and its British Vauxhall, as well as Ford's English Anglia.

On the other hand, a Cadillac El Dorado convertible sells for $38,000 while the Mexican price for a Continental hard-top is $25,000. This contrasts with the Lark and the Rambler which sell in Mexico for $2,494 and $2,270 respectively. The President of Mexico just doesn't fancy big cars cluttering up the highways.

Pope John On Latin America

Pope John XXIII confided to a leading Latin American, ex-President Galo Plaza of Ecuador, recently that he planned to effect a total revision of Catholic Church policies throughout Latin America.

The Pope was quite blunt in criticizing Church authorities in Latin America for failing to join in the world-wide religious revival and "not maintaining true spiritual contact with the faithful."

He noted that undue political activity by the Church — especially in Argentina, Colombia, Peru and Chile — had been responsible for the loss of prestige and influence.

The happiest and most fruitful relations between the Church and any Latin-American people, the Pontiff said, were in Mexico where there has been a rigid separation between church and state and where the Catholic clergy has kept strictly out of politics for 30 years.

Pope John expressed the hope that other Latin-American church leaders might follow Mexico's example.

Building Friendship

The visits of President Eisenhower and Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas to Acapulco gave a big boost to American-Mexican friendship. Both met in the glare of world-wide publicity and both got an enthusiastic reception.

While Ike was in Acupulco, however, another event took place in another part of Mexico, without headlines, which also built American friendship.

At the little mountain town of San Mateo Atenco a group of Mexicans and representatives of CARE and the American Friends Service Committee gathered to begin drilling a well. Throughout the centuries, San Mateo Atenco has had no well. Water has been obtained from digging crude holes in the soil, which with a density of 582 people per square mile and only three latrines in the entire village, has caused a 70 per cent incidence of intestinal parasites from drinking water.

So $10,000 was raised by CARE and the American Friends Service Committee to buy a modern well-drilling rig. And four young Quakers with engineering degrees came to Mexico to operate it. They are: Richard Downham of Media, Pa.; Karl Fagg of La Verne, Calif.; Knowles Daugherty of Austin, Minn., and Von Peacock of Winchester, Ind. Like other Friends volunteers who have been working in Mexico, they receive no salary, buy their own food and clothing, and live in two rooms rented from a local family.

So while Ike cruised on the yacht Satavento in scenic Acapulco Bay, a crowd of Mexican townspeople gathered at San Mateo Atenco to watch the first well being dug. It was no curious crowd of onlookers hooraying for a gringo handout. Everyone there had chipped in to help. The Catholic priest had donated the offerings he had saved to remodel his church. The neighborhood orchestra had raised money night after night at community dances. The Americans had contributed the well rig, but the Mexicans had raised the money for casing, capping and finishing the well. It was a joint project.

And there in the brilliant sunshine, as Daugherty threw the switch and the long shaft plunged smoothly into the dry earth, a great cheer went up from the townspeople.

"Viva CARE! Viva Friends! Viva United States!" they cried. The neighborhood orchestra struck up the Mexican national anthem. Church bells tolled. Homemade fireworks crackled into the blue sky.

It was an event which did not make such a widespread impression as the press conference Jim Hagerty was holding to say that the two Presidents had discussed many things but reached no specific agreements. But it will make a longer impression. For water from this well will flow on through the years.

Dark, Bloody Ground

By Joseph Alsop

MADISON, Wisconsin

Barring unforeseen developments, Wisconsin is due to be the dark and bloody ground of the Democrats in 1960. Here the battle of the candidates will first be joined, long before the Democratic nominating convention.

After a Siberian winter, this little state capital looks weather-worn but outwardly tranquil. Yet here in Madison, as elsewhere in the state, you can already hear the advance rumblings of the conflict that lies ahead. For instance, the astute young Democratic Governor, Gaylord Nelson, is already rather nervously proclaiming that his party's Wisconsin primary has got to be a free and fair fight, with all holds barred, and no unkindly feelings about the outcome.

Nelson has good reason to start talking early, too. The present front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, stormed into Milwaukee on Thursday, and he has been attracting capacity crowds ever since. The other active Democratic candidate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, is coming very soon.

The principal contestants look eager for the fray, but they are not. Sen. Humphrey did not want to fight for Wisconsin because of the fairly strong possibility of defeat. Hence Humphrey's political partner, Gov. Orville Freeman of Minnesota, tried to wrap up Wisconsin by the favorite-son device, with the heid of his friend, Gov. Nelson. That did not work, and now Humphrey has made up his mind to fight. But Sen. Kennedy is now having his second thoughts. Kennedy wonders whether he needs to risk his massive support in other states in a messy, chancy Wisconsin primary.

All the same, the logic of the situations of the two active Democratic candidates makes them the fore-ordained victims of one another. The inactive candidates may remain inactive, but Humphrey and Kennedy are all but forced to fight it out.

Outside his home territory, Humphrey has almost no solid support anywhere. Furthermore, his nomination will drive large numbers of Southerners out of the party. Hence he must decisively prove his magnetism by defeating the front-runner Kennedy in one or more primaries. If he shirks the test, Humphrey must finally give up his presidential aspirations.

Kennedy, by the same token, has very widespread support. But Kennedy still needs something extra to overcome his two handicaps, his Catholicism and his unnaturally youthful appearance. The surest way for Kennedy to get that something extra is to show his stuff in one or more primaries; and Wisconsin is a tempting place to begin. There are other reasons, too, why Wisconsin is a natural battleground. For one thing the old state of Joseph R. McCarthy is now one of the new states of the resurgent Democratic party. Partly this is because most of the old LaFollette Progressives, whom young Bob LaFollette fruitlessly led into the Republican party in 1946, have now transferred again to the Democratic ranks. Partly this is also because the McCarthy wing of the Republican party here has put on the best imitation of the Gadarene swine since the day the swine themselves frothed at the mouth and ran over the cliff.

Mainly, however, the Democratic triumph in Wisconsin has to be credited to able younger men of the type who have achieved the party's post-Truman rebirth in many other states besides Wisconsin. Gov. Nelson, Sen. Proxmire, State Chairman Pat Lucey, and many more, have worked hard and long, beginning nowhere. Their rewards have been the governorship, a majority in the lower house of the state legislature, half the Wisconsin Congressional seats and one of the Senate seats. Thus Wisconsin is now a meaningful scene for a Democratic presidential test.

In addition, Wisconsin should afford a fair test between Kennedy and Humphrey. Superficially, to be sure, the locals of the duel would seem to favor Humphrey. The Wisconsin pattern, of a union between the original Democrats and the LaFollette Progressives, is closely similar to the Minnesota pattern of a Democratic-Farmer Labor Alliance, which Humphrey helped to bring about. When both Wisconsin Senators were Republicans, many local Democrats actually treated Humphrey of Minnesota as their own Senator. Moreover, Humphrey has powerful support in the labor groups, in the farm cooperatives, and in the rural electrification associations.

Rather surprisingly, however, Kennedy still quite clearly has the edge, at least as of now. A majority of the Wisconsin politicians are leaning his way. Even those who are for Humphrey tell you, "Yes, Kennedy's ahead today, but wait and see how it shapes up after Humphrey has done some of his old-fashioned, hard-sell campaigning in the state.

Part of Kennedy's edge derives from Wisconsin's high percentage of Roman Catholics. But in the main, according to the local politicians, the Kennedy edge has to be attributed to his remarkable general appeal to all groups in the voting rank and file. If the appeal does not weaken, that is a pretty useful sort of edge to have.

Baseball Stages "Secondary" Openers In Seven Cities

70,000 May See Dodgers Play Cards

Yankees, Orioles To Draw 35,000; Pirates At Cincy

United Press International

Los Angeles, proud home of the Dodgers, gets a jump on the National League champion Milwaukee Braves in their battle for the attendance championship Tuesday when baseball stages its "secondary" openers in seven cities.

With a break in the weather, approximately 265,000 fans are expected to turn out for the 1959 debuts of the home clubs in Los Angeles, Milwaukee and San Francisco in the National League and Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland and Boston in the American.

The Cincinnati Reds, who opened at home last Thursday, return to Crosley Field to play the Pittsburgh Pirates at night, rounding out the full schedule of games.

70,000 To See Game

The largest crowd of the day, about 70,000, will jam the Los Angeles Coliseum to watch the Dodgers take on the St. Louis Cardinals at night. A crowd of more than 42,000 will pack County Stadium for the Braves' opener against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Milwaukee won the 1958 attendance crown by drawing 1, 971,101 compared to Los Angeles, 1,-845,556. The Dodgers flung a challenge at the Braves this spring in the "battle of the turnstiles" and Milwaukee promptly accepted.

Although the Braves' park seats approximately 50,000 less than the Los Angeles Coliseum, Milwaukee interests feel strong civic spirit and a potentially stronger ball club will offset that disadvantage.

Here is Tuesday's schedule:

National League

Philadelphia at Milwaukee
Chicago at San Francisco
St. Louis at Los Angeles, Night
Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Night

American League

New York at Baltimore
Washington at Boston
Detroit at Cleveland
Kansas City at Chicago

Herb Score, baseball's most celebrated comeback aspirant, makes his first major league start since last July 15 when the Indians play their home opener against the Tigers before 40,000.

Score Vs. Bunning

The fireballing left-hander, felled by a line drive back in May of 1957, never has fully recovered. He won only two games while losing three last season and was wild in a relief stint last Friday. He walked two batters, made a wild pitch and was lifted after throwing two balls to the third hitter he faced. Score's opponent will be Jim Bunning, who was beaten by the White Sox in his first start on Friday.

Warren Spahn, the Braves' stylish southpaw who pitched a shutout against Pittsburgh last Friday, shoots for the 248th victory of his career against the Phils. Other pitchers who'll be making their second start of the season will be Bob Purkey of the Reds, who won the opener against the Pirates, and Billy Pierce of the White Sox, who did not receive credit for the decision in the victory against Detroit.

Seek 4th Straight

Pierce will be out to extend the White Sox' record to 4-0 atop the American League race. The same goes for Jack Sanford of the Giants. Sanford, obtained in an off season trade with the Phils, will be opposed by Dave Hillman when the Giants open their second San Francisco season against the Chicago Cubs before a sellout crowd of 22,500 in Little Seals Stadium.

Don (Perfect Game) Larsen, troubled by a tender shoulder during spring training, starts for the world champion New York Yanks in the Orioles' home opener before a crowd of about 35,000. He will be opposed by Arnold Portocarrero.

Anderson Named Cyclones' Coach

AMES, Iowa (UPI) —The Iowa State Athletic Council Monday night elevated Glendon Anderson from freshman basketball coach to head basketball coach to succeed Bill Strannigan.

The athletic council announced the selection of Anderson after meeting throughout the day with cage coach Bob Vanatta of Memphis State who had been regarded as the front runner in the voting.

Anderson, however, was the choice of Strannigan who resigned last Monday to take over as head coach at the University of Wyoming. He served as Iowa State coach for five years.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI) — Washington & Lee golf team defeated West Virginia University 6½ to 2½ here Monday despite cold, soggy course conditions.

Gene Girard of W&L and Tony Mursco of WVU fired 73s to share medalist honors.

Promoter Dies

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP) — Earle Kalani, 59, Vancouver fight promoter, died in a hospital here Sunday night.

None Took Ruth's Job, Says Selkirk

By FRANK ECK

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Twinkletoes George Selkirk is most readily identified as "the man who took Babe Ruth's place."

But don't say it within George's hearing.

"Nobody ever took the Babe's place," said George as he sipped a cool drink after a trying round of golf. "The Babe just wore out.

"Remember, he was over 39 when the Yankees released him in 1934. Those spindle legs of his had to carry a big body around the field for 21 years.

"There never was a man like him when it came to playing baseball."

Many youngsters of today believe that Ruth's No. 3 uniform was retired to the Baseball Hall of Fame soon after he finished playing with the Yankees.

Not so.

Selkirk was given the Babe's No. 3 in 1935 when he went into right field for the Bronx Bombers. It wasn't retired until 1942 when George went into the Navy.

Selkirk came up to the Yankees

GEORGE SELKIRK

Babe's Place? Never!

in 1934 from Newark to replace injured outfielder Earle Combs, now Kentucky's banking commissioner. He wore No. 21 that year.

Selkirk, now supervisor of the farm system for the Kansas City Athletics, says Joe McCarthy of the Yankees and Billy Southworth, whom he had briefly at Rochester, were the greatest managers he ever played for.

Selkirk was more than a fair country hitter. He went above .300 his first five years with the New York Yankees. He finished with a .292 mark for 846 American League games, all with the Bronx Bombers.

When Twink returned from the Navy at 38, he became the Yankees' Newark manager in the International League. He managed 10 years in the minors. His best job came at Toledo in 1953.

Selkirk took over at Toledo, replacing Tommy Holmes, for the Milwaukee Braves with the Glass Sox in last place on May 15. His team wound up winning the American Assn. pennant.

Machen Is Injured, Fight Is Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heavyweight title contender Eddie Machen came up with a badly-swollen right hand Monday and and his scheduled bout with Ruben Vargas for the Cow Palace on April 29 was postponed until May 20.

Promoter Bennie Ford announced Machen had been boxing in Portland during a training session and the hand became steadily worse. He has been having trouble with scar tissue on the hand. Manager Sid Flaherty ordered him to lay off workouts for 10 or 12 days.

The bout on the May 20 date also will be national television show.

Park Place And Old Furnace Win Sportsmanship Awards

Get Dave Kauffman Trophies; 390 At SS. League Dinner

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

Park Place Methodist and the Old Furnace Church of the Brethren teams received the Dave Kauffman Memorial trophies for sportsmanship in their respective divisions at last night's 16th annual Sunday School Basketball League dinner at Central YMCA.

An overflow crowd of nearly 390 persons in the YMCA gymnasium saw Earl M. Nonnenmann of the Sports Shoppe donate the trophies in memory of the late Allegany High School athlete and Cumberland lawyer, Mr. Kauffman was assistant attorney general of Maryland at the time of his death on October 10, 1956.

Floyd "Pete" Elliott, coach of the American Division Park Place team, and Donald Kenney, pilot of the Old Furnace squad in the National Division, accepted the trophies.

Mr. Nonnenmann, in presenting the third annual awards, said they were given "not for winning a playoff or a pennant, but for the way you played the game." He said coaches and referees of each division of the basketball circuit voted on the teams which received the trophies "in behalf of a great athlete and philanthropist."

These were but two of the numerous team and individual trophies awarded last night at the dinner which marked the completion of the 31st season of the church basketball league. It was attended by what many people said was the largest crowd ever to be present at a league dinner.

Maccabees Get Trophy

The Ronald Minnicks Memorial Trophy was presented to the Maccabees, winners of the most games in the American Division during the regular season, by Donald Lilya, past governor of the Loyal Order of Moose who donated the award. It was accepted by assistant coach Bob Miller who in turn presented individual trophies to each of the players on the team.

Melvin Methodist received the Lynn C. Lashley trophy which goes each year to the victor of the American Division playoffs. The league trophy, which must be won three times for permanent possession, was given to Coach Roy Manges while assistant coach Ralph Ferguson accepted a smaller permanent trophy for the church. The trophies were presented by Dr. W. R. Allen, past president of the YMCA.

Bishop Presents Award

In the National Division the First President's Trophy, donated and presented by James W. Bishop went to Trinity Lutheran Church whose team completed the regular season with a 19-0 mark. Jack Chisholm, coach of the team, accepted the award and then gave out individual trophies to members of his squad.

Mr. Bishop, who was head of the loop when it was formed 31 years ago, said this is the first year for the First President's Trophy which will now become an annual award.

The playoff award, the Ernest B. Treat trophy, was presented by Dr. Allen to William Stephens, coach of the victorious St. Philip's Episcopal Church aggregation of the National Division. St. Philip's won the playoffs by defeating Grace Baptist who previously had knocked off unbeaten Trinity Lutheran.

Fortner Praises Kuhn

James Fortner, program secretary of the YMCA, closed the dinner meeting by expressing his pleasure at "being able to tie the loose ends together" to make the church league a success. He praised Edwin "Pappy" Kuhn, former YMCA physical education director, who was instrumental in the formation of the 28-team circuit, and Mr. Bishop who was its first president. He said that it was a real tribute to the league and the people who work for it that it has grown from an original eight teams to its present size.

Mr. Fortner then paid tribute to the referees who handled most of the regular season and playoff games with him and presented each with a small gift. They are Gary Davis, Ed Brode, Ronnie Riggs, Joey Wagner, Joe Fogtman, Eddie Root, Lee Taylor, Mike Miller and Bob Young.

Riggs Worked 119 Games

The program secretary had particular praise for Ronnie Riggs who refereed 119 games during the basketball season.

He mentioned also that the YMCA hopes to form a referees club some time in September to teach the younger boys how to officiate games.

Invocation was given by Rev. William Snyder, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Wayne Eberly, pastor of Living Stone Church of the Brethren.

Herman I. Smith, minister of music of First Presbyterian Church, led group singing after the YMCA Ladies Auxiliary served dinner.

Klondyke Tossers To Hold Buck Party

Pirates Buy Pitcher Giel From Giants

Raydon Optioned To Columbus Club

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates Monday bought righthander Paul Giel from the San Francisco Giants.

Giel, a former All - America halfback at the University of Minnesota, had offers from a dozen major league clubs and signed a bonus contract with the Giants in 1954. Last season, Giel had a 4-5 record with the Giants.

To make room on the roster for Giel, the Pirates optioned pitcher Curt Raydon to Columbus of the International League on 24 -hour recall.

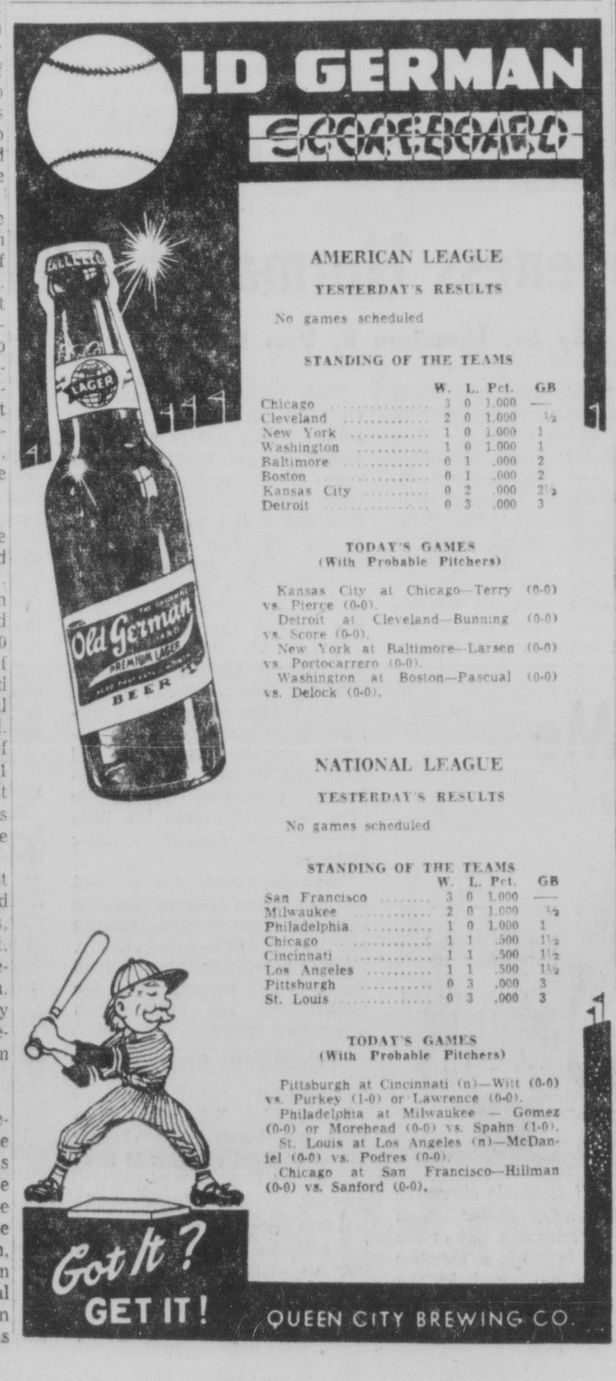

The righthanded Raydon, who had an 8-4 slate with the Bucs last year, is being sent to Columbus to get into condition after an operation on his pitching hand delayed his training this spring.

Hockey Player Is Fined $100, Broke Newsman's Camera

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gordon (Bucky) Hollingworth, a defenseman with the Cleveland Barons, Monday was fined $100 for smashing a newspaper photographer's camera during an American Hockey League playoff game at Hershey, Pa., last Saturday night.

The fine was announced by Richard Canning, president of the league, who called Hollingworth's action "prejudicial to the game of hockey."

Ortiz Stops Len Matthews

Carlos Scores TKO In Sixth At Philly

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Carlos Ortiz, of New York, a 7-5 underdog, scored a technical knockout over Len Matthews at 2:21 of the sixth round in a scheduled 10-round lightweight bout Monday night before a near capacity crowd of 7,500 at the arena.

The 22-year-old Puerto Rican, rated the underdog despite the fact he is second ranked contender, called on his superior experience to smother the power punches of the young Philadelphia knockout artist.

It was a give or take battle throughout with Matthews opening a cut on Ortiz' right eye in the fourth round. But Ortiz kept shifting his attack and continued to press Matthews until he caught him in the sixth round and pinned him against the ropes, blasting away freely with both hands for almost a full minute.

The game Matthews refused to go down but was obviously helpless as he was being pounded in his own corner. Referee Pete Panpaleo stepped in and stopped the bout.

Baseball Stages "Secondary" Openers In Seven Cities

70,000 May See Dodgers Play Cards

Yankees, Orioles To Draw 35,000; Pirates At Cincy

United Press International

Los Angeles, proud home of the Dodgers, gets a jump on the National League champion Milwaukee Braves in their battle for the attendance championship Tuesday when baseball stages its "secondary" openers in seven cities.

With a break in the weather, approximately 265,000 fans are expected to turn out for the 1959 debuts of the home clubs in Los Angeles, Milwaukee and San Francisco in the National League and Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland and Boston in the American.

The Cincinnati Reds, who opened at home last Thursday, return to Crosley Field to play the Pittsburgh Pirates at night, rounding out the full schedule of games.

70,000 To See Game

The largest crowd of the day, about 70,000, will jam the Los Angeles Coliseum to watch the Dodgers take on the St. Louis Cardinals at night. A crowd of more than 42,000 will pack County Stadium for the Braves' opener against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Milwaukee won the 1958 attendance crown by drawing 1, 971,101 compared to Los Angeles, 1,-845,556. The Dodgers flung a challenge at the Braves this spring in the "battle of the turnstiles" and Milwaukee promptly accepted.

Although the Braves' park seats approximately 50,000 less than the Los Angeles Coliseum, Milwaukee interests feel strong civic spirit and a potentially stronger ball club will offset that disadvantage.

Here is Tuesday's schedule:

National League

Philadelphia at Milwaukee
Chicago at San Francisco
St. Louis at Los Angeles, Night
Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Night

American League

New York at Baltimore
Washington at Boston
Detroit at Cleveland
Kansas City at Chicago

Herb Score, baseball's most celebrated comeback aspirant, makes his first major league start since last July 15 when the Indians play their home opener against the Tigers before 40,000.

Score Vs. Bunning

The fireballing left-hander, felled by a line drive back in May of 1957, never has fully recovered. He won only two games while losing three last season and was wild in a relief stint last Friday. He walked two batters, made a wild pitch and was lifted after throwing two balls to the third hitter he faced. Score's opponent will be Jim Bunning, who was beaten by the White Sox in his first start on Friday.

Warren Spahn, the Braves' stylish southpaw who pitched a shutout against Pittsburgh last Friday, shoots for the 248th victory of his career against the Phils. Other pitchers who'll be making their second start of the season will be Bob Purkey of the Reds, who won the opener against the Pirates, and Billy Pierce of the White Sox, who did not receive credit for the decision in the victory against Detroit.

Seek 4th Straight

Pierce will be out to extend the White Sox' record to 4-0 atop the American League race. The same goes for Jack Sanford of the Giants. Sanford, obtained in an off season trade with the Phils, will be opposed by Dave Hillman when the Giants open their second San Francisco season against the Chicago Cubs before a sellout crowd of 22,500 in Little Seals Stadium.

Don (Perfect Game) Larsen, troubled by a tender shoulder during spring training, starts for the world champion New York Yanks in the Orioles' home opener before a crowd of about 35,000. He will be opposed by Arnold Portocarrero.

Anderson Named Cyclones' Coach

AMES, Iowa (UPI) —The Iowa State Athletic Council Monday night elevated Glendon Anderson from freshman basketball coach to head basketball coach to succeed Bill Strannigan.

The athletic council announced the selection of Anderson after meeting throughout the day with cage coach Bob Vanatta of Memphis State who had been regarded as the front runner in the voting.

Anderson, however, was the choice of Strannigan who resigned last Monday to take over as head coach at the University of Wyoming. He served as Iowa State coach for five years.

Generals Top WVU

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI) — Washington & Lee golf team defeated West Virginia University 6½ to 2½ here Monday despite cold, soggy course conditions.

Gene Girard of W&L and Tony Mursco of WVU fired 73s to share medalist honors.

Promoter Dies

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP) — Earle Kalani, 59, Vancouver fight promoter, died in a hospital here Sunday night.

None Took Ruth's Job, Says Selkirk

By FRANK ECK

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Twinkletoes George Selkirk is most readily identified as "the man who took Babe Ruth's place."

But don't say it within George's hearing.

"Nobody ever took the Babe's place," said George as he sipped a cool drink after a trying round of golf. "The Babe just wore out.

"Remember, he was over 39 when the Yankees released him in 1934. Those spindle legs of his had to carry a big body around the field for 21 years.

"There never was a man like him when it came to playing baseball."

Many youngsters of today believe that Ruth's No. 3 uniform was retired to the Baseball Hall of Fame soon after he finished playing with the Yankees.

Not so.

Selkirk was given the Babe's No. 3 in 1935 when he went into right field for the Bronx Bombers. It wasn't retired until 1942 when George went into the Navy.

Selkirk came up to the Yankees

GEORGE SELKIRK
Babe's Place? Never!

in 1934 from Newark to replace injured outfielder Earle Combs, now Kentucky's banking commissioner. He wore No. 21 that year.

Selkirk, now supervisor of the farm system for the Kansas City Athletics, says Joe McCarthy of the Yankees and Billy Southworth, whom he had briefly at Rochester, were the greatest managers he ever played for.

Selkirk was more than a fair country hitter. He went above .300 his first five years with the New York Yankees. He finished with a .292 mark for 846 American League games, all with the Bronx Bombers.

When Twink returned from the Navy at 38, he became the Yankees' Newark manager in the International League. He managed 10 years in the minors. His best job came at Toledo in 1953.

Selkirk took over at Toledo, replacing Tommy Holmes, for the Milwaukee Braves with the Glass Sox in last place on May 15. His team wound up winning the American Assn. pennant.

Machen Is Injured, Fight Is Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heavyweight title contender Eddie Machen came up with a badly-swollen right hand Monday and and his scheduled bout with Ruben Vargas for the Cow Palace on April 29 was postponed until May 20.

Promoter Bennie Ford announced Machen had been boxing in Portland during a training session and the hand became steadily worse. He has been having trouble with scar tissue on the hand. Manager Sid Flaherty ordered him to lay off workouts for 10 or 12 days.

The bout on the May 20 date also will be national television show.

Park Place And Old Furnace Win Sportsmanship Awards

Get Dave Kauffman Trophies; 390 At SS. League Dinner

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

Park Place Methodist and the Old Furnace Church of the Brethren teams received the Dave Kauffman Memorial trophies for sportsmanship in their respective divisions at last night's 16th annual Sunday School Basketball League dinner at Central YMCA.

An overflow crowd of nearly 390 persons in the YMCA gymnasium saw Earl M. Nonnenmann of the Sports Shoppe donate the trophies in memory of the late Allegany High School athlete and Cumberland lawyer. Mr. Kauffman was assistant attorney general of Maryland at the time of his death on October 10, 1956.

Floyd "Pete" Elliott, coach of the American Division Park Place team, and Donald Kenney, pilot of the Old Furnace squad in the National Division, accepted the trophies.

Mr. Nonnenmann, in presenting the third annual awards, said they were given "not for winning a playoff or a pennant, but for the way you played the game." He said coaches and referees of each division of the basketball circuit voted on the teams which received the trophies "in behalf of a great athlete and philanthropist."

These were but two of the numerous team and individual trophies awarded last night at the dinner which marked the completion of the 31st season of the church basketball league. It was attended by what many people said was the largest crowd ever to be present at a league dinner.

Maccabees Get Trophy

The Ronald Minnicks Memorial Trophy was presented to the Maccabees, winners of the most games in the American Division during the regular season, by Donald Lilya, past governor of the Loyal Order of Moose who donated the award. It was accepted by assistant coach Bob Miller who in turn presented individual trophies to each of the players on the team.

Melvin Methodist received the Lynn C. Lashley trophy which goes each year to the victor of the American Division playoffs. The league trophy, which must be won three times for permanent possession, was given to Coach Roy Manges while assistant coach Ralph Ferguson accepted a smaller permanent trophy for the church. The trophies were presented by Dr. W. R. Allen, past president of the YMCA.

Bishop Presents Award

In the National Division the First President's Trophy, donated and presented by James W. Bishop went to Trinity Lutheran Church whose team completed the regular season with a 19-0 mark. Jack Chisholm, coach of the team, accepted the award and then gave out individual trophies to members of his squad.

Mr. Bishop, who was head of the loop when it was formed 31 years ago, said this is the first year for the First President's Trophy which will now become an annual award.

The playoff award, the Ernest B. Treat trophy, was presented by Dr. Allen to William Stephens, coach of the victorious St. Philip's Episcopal Church aggregation of the National Division. St. Philip's won the playoffs by defeating Grace Baptist who previously had knocked off unbeaten Trinity Lutheran.

Fortner Praises Kuhn

James Fortner, program secretary of the YMCA, closed the dinner meeting by expressing his pleasure at "being able to tie the loose ends together" to make the church league a success. He praised Edwin "Pappy" Kuhn, former YMCA physical education director, who was instrumental in the formation of the 28-team circuit, and Mr. Bishop who was its first president. He said that it was a real tribute to the league and the people who work for it that it has grown from an original eight teams to its present size.

Mr. Fortner then paid tribute to the referees who handled most of the regular season and playoff games with him and presented each with a small gift. They are Gary Davis, Ed Brode, Ronnie Riggs, Joey Wagner, Joe Fogtman, Eddie Root, Lee Taylor, Mike Miller and Bob Young.

Riggs Worked 119 Games

The program secretary had particular praise for Ronnie Riggs who refereed 119 games during the basketball season.

He mentioned also that the YMCA hopes to form a referees club some time in September to teach the younger boys how to officiate games.

Invocation was given by Rev. William Snyder, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Wayne Eberly, pastor of Living Stone Church of the Brethren.

Herman I. Smith, minister of music of First Presbyterian Church, led group singing after the YMCA Ladies Auxiliary served dinner.

Pirates Buy Pitcher Giel From Giants

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates Monday bought righthander Paul Giel from the San Francisco Giants.

Giel, a former All - America halfback at the University of Minnesota, had offers from a dozen major league clubs and signed a bonus contract with the Giants in 1954. Last season, Giel had a 4-5 record with the Giants.

To make room on the roster for Giel, the Pirates optioned pitcher Curt Raydon to Columbus of the International League on 24 -hour recall.

Hockey Player Is Fined $100, Broke Newsman's Camera

Ortiz Stops Len Matthews

Carlos Scores TKO In Sixth At Philly

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Carlos Ortiz, of New York, a 7-5 underdog, scored a technical knockout over Len Matthews at 2:21 of the sixth round in a scheduled 10-round lightweight bout Monday night before a near capacity crowd of 7,500 at the arena.

It was a give or take battle throughout with Matthews opening a cut on Ortiz' right eye in the fourth round. But Ortiz kept shifting his attack and continued to press Matthews until he caught him in the sixth round and pinned him against the ropes, blasting away freely with both hands for almost a full minute.

The game Matthews refused to go down but was obviously helpless as he was being pounded in his own corner. Referee Pete Panpaleo stepped in and stopped the bout.

First Landing Triumphs In Prep Race For Wood Memorial

Chenery Colt Impresses In Jamaica Win

Arcaro Will Ride 3-Year-Old Again In Saturday Race

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eddie Arcaro rode First Landing to an impressive three-length victory Monday in a prep race for the Wood Memorial and promptly announced he would be back aboard the son of Turn-To in the week end classic.

Arcaro was undecided before Monday's race whether he would ride Atoll or First Landing in the Wood—New York's final major test for the Kentucky Derby.

Only five other three-year-olds opposed First Landing in Monday's race. Arcaro allowed the colt to race along in third place during the early stages of the race, then made his move on the stretch turn.

First Landing quickly gained the lead and was pulling away from his rivals when he hit the wire. He carried top-weight of 124 pounds over a fast track in 1:10 1-5 and paid $2.70 to win.

LAUREL, Md., April 13 (AP) — Fresh Paint ran all the way in front to win the $4,500 Takoma Park Purse today and right into the halter of a new owner.

The 6-year-old mare started the race as the property of Warner G. Morton and was claimed at the finish for $7,500 by The Powhattan Farm of Walter E. Crismer.

It was her first triumph in four races this year and she took it by three lengths over Longspur. Fresh Paint ran the three quarters of a mile in 1:12 2/5, good time on the slow, damp track.

Fresh Paint returned $7.20, $4.80 and $2.60 in the $2 mutuels. Longspur paid $6.00 and $2.80 and Pine Theme $2.20 for show.

Pine Theme and Gallant Runner, the entry of William Hal Bishop entry, had been made the 6-5 favorite by the crowd of 9,710.

Moran, Taylor Spark Salem's To Title, 60-58

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 13—Paced by Don Moran, of Westernport, Md., and Joe Taylor, of Piedmont, W. Va., who scored 23 and 17 points, respectively, Salem's quint of Johnstown, nosed out DiBartola's Service, of Johnstown, tonight by the score of 60-58 to capture the championship of the 23rd annual Central States Basketball Tournament at Johnstown Catholic High School.

DiBartola's held a 30-27 advantage at halftime.

The victory was the fourth in a row for the Salem quint, composed of players from Allegany county, Md., and Mineral county, W. Va. Last week the same team posted its fifth straight victory to annex the Windber (Pa.) Community League tournament title.

Moran was voted the Most Valuable Player Award in the tournament after Salem's won tonight's game.

Jack O'Malley and Don Felinski, St. Francis (Loretto, Pa.) College seniors, scored 12 and 10 points, respectively, for DiBartola's but Salem's limited Joe Calderone, former Johnstown High scoring ace, to two points.

Alonzo Johnson Wins At St. Nick

It was Johnson's third straight victory at the ancient fight club this year. He weighed 187½ pounds for the non-televised bout. Hunter scaled 192.

Referee Davey Feld gave Johnson six rounds, awarded three to Hunter and called one even. Judge Joe Agnello also voted for Johnson, 7-3. The other judge, Leo Birnbaum, favored Hunter, 6-4.

Hank Thompson Is Arrested On Assault Charge

Slugged Woman, Bail Set At $1,500

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hank Thompson, former New York Giants third baseman, appeared in felony court Monday on charges that he slugged a woman press agent and stole $3 from her purse.

She said that Thompson became angry when she changed her mind about lending him money. She said he came to her apartment Saturday night, beat her and rifled her purse. She fled from the apartment and was treated at a hospital.

Thompson later telephoned her husband, Billy, whom he had known for about six years, and asked to meet him. Bowen notified police who arrested Thompson when he showed up at the meeting place.

Magistrate Ludwig Glowa reduced the charges to third degree assault and unlawful entry, and set bail at $1,500. Thompson was released by the Giants in 1957. He has been a salesman since.

Miranda May Play For Orioles Today, Suspension Lifted

BALTIMORE (AP) — The suspension against shortstop Willy Miranda was lifted by the Baltimore Orioles Monday night and he'll be available for the game against the New York Yankees Tuesday.

The little Cuban had reported 36 days late to the Oriole training camp at Miami and was fined or forfeited $1,000 of the $9,000 salary.

Petition Sought To Block Racing Commission Bill

5,000 Signatures Of Voters Must Be Obtained By June 1

BALTIMORE (AP)—Efforts to force a public vote on reorganization of the Maryland Racing Commission, if it is approved by Gov. Tawes, were afoot Monday.

A bill to prematurely end the terms of the present three commissioners and provide for appointment of five was passed overwhelmingly by the legislature earlier this month. It is awaiting the governor's veto or signature.

A petition could blocks its becoming effective until the voters had a chance to be heard on it in November, 1960.

Signatures Sought

To accomplish this, 5,000 signatures of voters must be obtained by June 1 and another 5,000 by July 1.

D. Eldred Rinehart, the present chairman, has offered the committee his assistance. His term is due to expire in any event on June 30.

The proposed commission reorganization is the "most damaging legislation to have occurred since I've been connected with racing," Rinehart said.

Take Care Of Politicians

Besides creating five appointments instead of one for the new Democratic governor, the commission has a host of appointments such as stewards and inspectors at the tracks.

Rinehart objected strongly to elimination of a provision that commissioners may be removed by the governor only for misconduct or incompetence after a hearing.

The proposed bill would permit the governor to dismiss a commissioner any time without cause.

Other members on the committee preparing to seek signatures for a referendum petition include prominent owners and breeders of thoroughbreds, John A. Manfuso, spokesman for every phase of the sport, and Clarence Miles, former president of Ocean Downs.

Opposed By Tracks

Every race track except Ocean Downs in Maryland is on record opposed to the commission reorganization. It was freely testified before a Senate committee that Ocean Downs hoped to benefit in a change of dates from a new commission.

Representatives of Ocean Downs declined to reply.

Two track and field meets are scheduled for this week at Beall High School Stadium.

Giants Given Hero Welcome By Home Town

Swept First Three Games On The Road

By HAL WOOD
United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants, winners of their first three games of the 1959 National League season, returned to their home town and a hero's welcome Monday.

The Giants, led by Manager Bill Rigney, were paraded through the city's streets as ticker tape and confetti were tossed on them from sky-scrapers in the financial district. The parade wended it's way to city hall, where the whole team was officially welcomed.

Sunday night the Giants had been welcomed at the airport by more than 4,000 fans as they returned from their triumphant seasonal opening in St. Louis.

"This is just great," said Rigney as he surveyed the crowds. "This is going to give all our players a real lift in spirit."

Happy Over Victories

Rigney was happy with his club's three wins over the Cardinals—but not too sure about the future.

"We played real bad ball in the second and third games and still won," said Rigney. "We'll have to play better than that if we are to beat the first division clubs."

The Giants made nine errors in their first three games—five of them by rookie shortstop Andre Rodgers. But they hit the long ball and that spelled the difference.

Crowds Cheer Alou

When they arrived here, the biggest cheers went up for outfielder Felipe Alou, who cracked the homer Sunday; first baseman Orlando Cepeda, who collected the hits that broke ties and put the Giants in front to stay in both the second and third games; and the ever-popular Willie Mays.

The crowds that will jam Seals Stadium during the next six days will be made up of fans from all over the west. Tuesday's game has attracted big delegations from Reno, Nev., Eureka, Calif., which is 300 miles north; San Jose, Salinas and as far south as San Diego.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball's best bets for 1959:

Batting — A flier on Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers on the theory Ted Williams won't get up for enough official "at bats" to win another title and that Yankee Mickey Mantle will devote his energies to the long ball. Willie Mays of the Giants in the National League, a solid sender with an age edge on Stan Musial of St. Louis.

Home runs — Rocky Colavito of the Indians who finished one back of Mantle last year though he wasn't even a regular when the season opened. Ernie Banks of the Cubs in the National League and tops in the majors.

Mantle And Banks

Runs-batted-in — Mantle and Banks, both sluggers, both on teams that get men on base.

Most Valuable Players—Mantle on the theory he's out to "show the Yankees" and Mays but, unlike Banks last year, Willie may not get unless the Giants give the pennant a big run.

Stolen Bases — The defending champs—Mays and Luis Aparicio of the White Six.

Most Times Walked Intentionally — Musial and Mantle.

Most Pitching Victories — Warren Spahn of the Braves and Bob Turley of the Yankees, two guys who never fail to show up when their turn is called.

Wynn And Jones

Strikeout Artists (Pitching) — Early Wynn of the White Sox and Sam Jones of the Giants.

Most Times Striking Out — Mantle and Harry Anderson of the Phillies.

Most Walks Issued — Turley and Sam Jones.

Most Improved Teams — Detroit Tigers who went into the trading marts for different personnel and the Los Angeles Dodgers who shouldn't be as bad again as in '58.

Most Home Run Balls Pitched—Pedro Ramos of the Senators and Robin Roberts of the Phillies who both work often and aren't yanked for relievers as often as most.

Busiest Relievers—Don Elston of the Cubs who strolled in 65 times last season and Truman Clevenger of the Senators.

Most Times Plunked by Pitcher—Minnie Minoso of the Indians, the annual champ, and Walt Moryn of the Cubs.

Chancellors Win Second Half Title In K. Of C. League

Capt. Bernard Tasker's Chancellors captured three games from the Recorders last night at the Club Recreation Alleys and sewed up the second half championship of the Knights of Columbus Duckpin League.

Next Monday night, the Chancellors will meet the Grand Knights, first half winners, in three games, total pins, for the league championship. The following Monday, April 27, the league will hold a doubles tournament.

Jack Loibel Jr., of the Grand Knights, was high scorer last night with a 215-544. Jack Steiner of the same team posted a three-game total of 522. Other high men were: Tom McGeady, Chancellors, 194-507; Jerry Loibel, Guards, 180-462, and Joe Monell, Recorders, 157-433.

The standings:

Pirates Drill, Toss Baseballs And Snowballs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Danny Murtaugh, disappointed by three straight losses, put his Pittsburgh Pirates through an hour-long drill Monday of tossing baseballs and snowballs—mostly snowballs.

Murtaugh said he was disappointed in the Pirates' hitting but felt it was only a temporary deterrent.

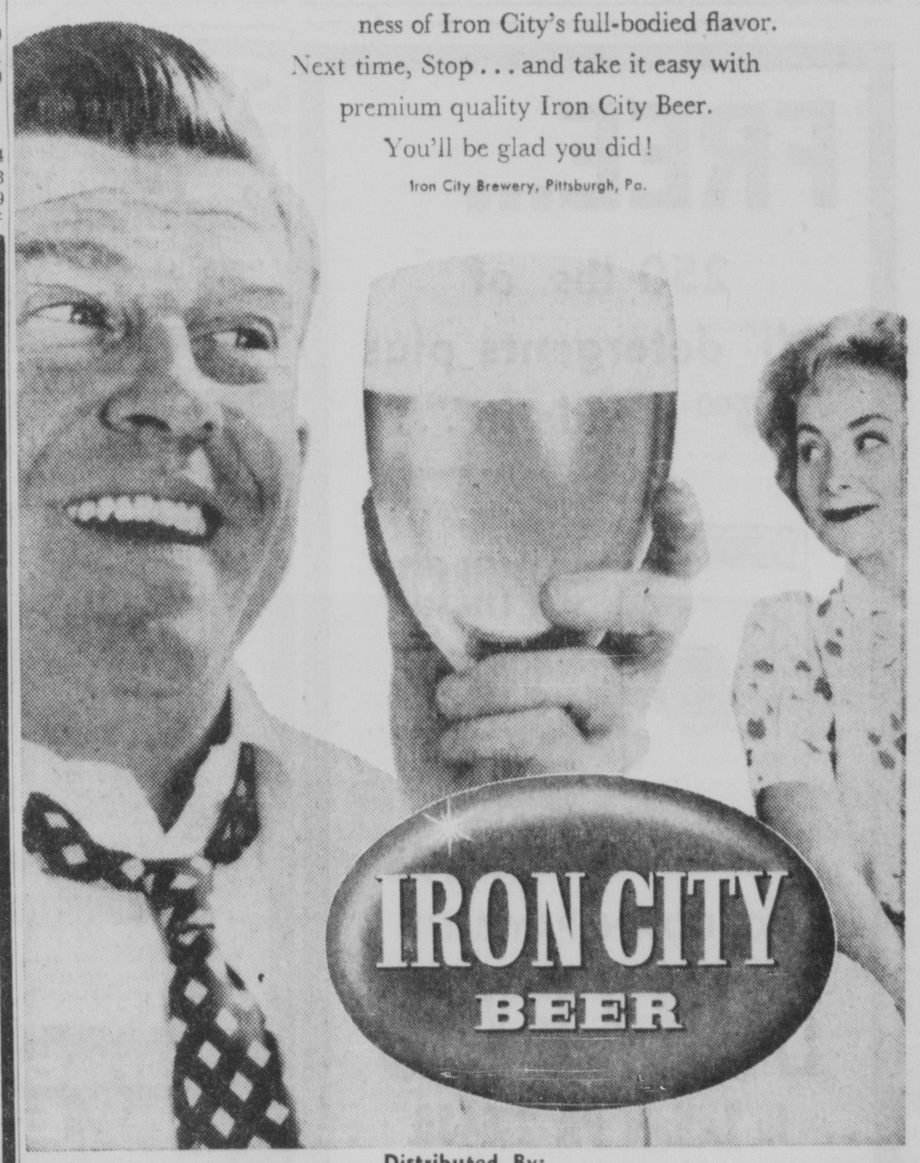

"We're not the only team that's going to lose three games in a row this year," said the genial Irishman. "We have a sound ball club and once we start hitting it will be a different story."

The Pirates have scored only 4 runs in losing 4-1 to Cincinnati in the opener and 8-0 and 4-3 to Milwaukee at Pittsburgh.

First Landing Triumphs In Prep Race For Wood Memorial

Chenery Colt Impresses In Jamaica Win

Arcaro Will Ride 3-Year-Old Again In Saturday Race

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eddie Arcaro rode First Landing to an impressive three-length victory Monday in a prep race for the Wood Memorial and promptly announced he would be back aboard the son of Turn-To in the week end classic.

Arcaro was undecided before Monday's race whether he would ride Atoll or First Landing in the Wood—New York's final major test for the Kentucky Derby.

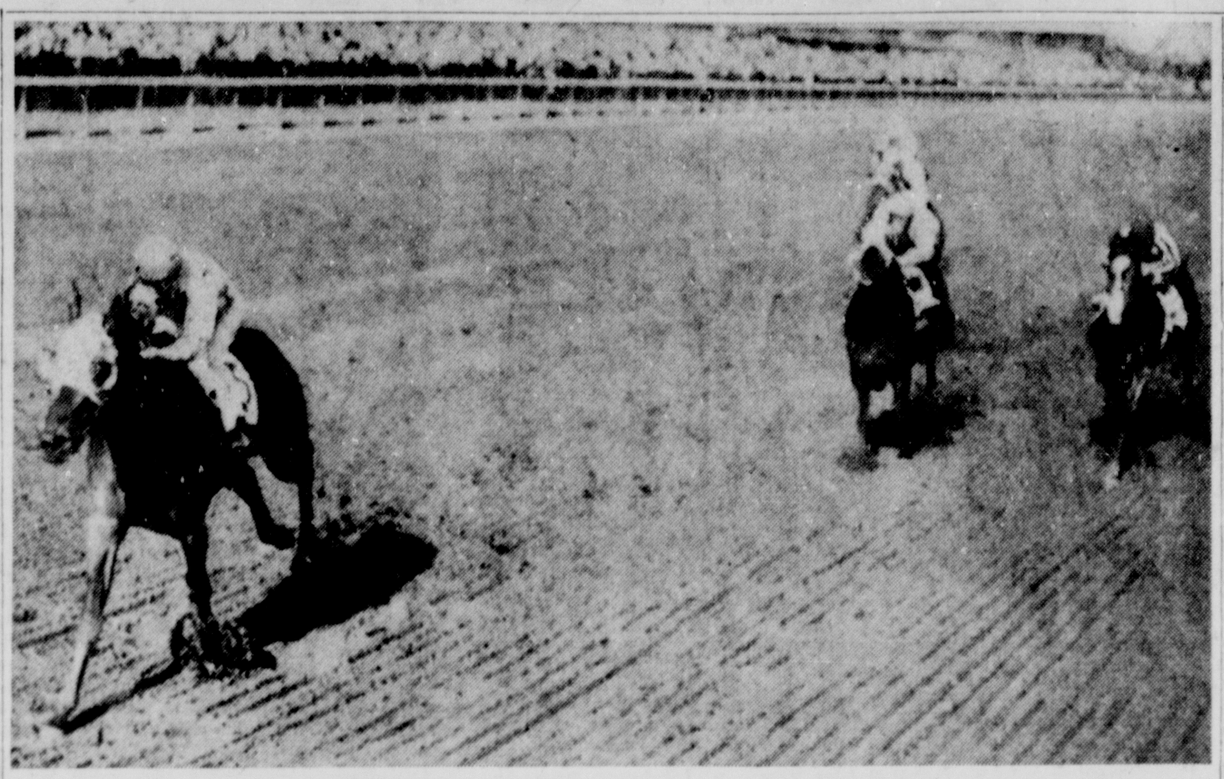

However, after Monday's six furlong prep, Eddie announced, "he (First Landing) is a real fit horse. . .I'll ride him in the Wood."

If First Landing puts in another good effort in the Wood, Arcaro then is expected to shoot for his sixth derby victory aboard the speedy colt from the Chris Chenery stable.

Only five other three-year-olds opposed First Landing in Monday's race. Arcaro allowed the colt to race along in third place during the early stages of the race, then made his move on the stretch turn.

First Landing quickly gained the lead and was pulling away from his rivals when he hit the wire. He carried top-weight of 124 pounds over a fast track in 1:10 1-5 and paid $2.70 to win.

Nimmer finished second, three-quarters of a length ahead of Hilwan. That Lucky Day was fourth.

LAUREL, Md., April 13 (AP) — Fresh Paint ran all the way in front to win the $4,500 Takoma Park Purse today and right into the halter of a new owner.

The 6-year-old mare started the race as the property of Warner G. Morton and was claimed at the finish for $7,500 by The Powhattan Farm of Walter E. Crismer.

It was her first triumph in four races this year and she took it by three lengths over Longspur. Fresh Paint ran the three quarters of a mile in 1:12 2/5, good time on the slow, damp track.

Fresh Paint returned $7.20, $4.80 and $2.60 in the $2 mutuels. Longspur paid $6.00 and $2.80 and Pine Theme $2.20 for show.

Pine Theme and Gallant Runner, the entry of William Hal Bishop entry, had been made the 6-5 favorite by the crowd of 9,710.

Moran, Taylor Spark Salem's To Title, 60-58

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 13—Paced by Don Moran, of Westernport, Md., and Joe Taylor, of Piedmont, W. Va., who scored 23 and 17 points, respectively, Salem's quint of Johnstown, nosed out DiBartola's Service, of Johnstown, tonight by the score of 60-58 to capture the championship of the 23rd annual Central States Basketball Tournament at Johnstown Catholic High School.

Moran headed Cueva's Travelers last year when the Westernport (Md.) quint won the tournament.

DiBartola's held a 30-27 advantage at halftime.

The victory was the fourth in a row for the Salem quint, composed of players from Allegany county, Md., and Mineral county, W. Va. Last week the same team posted its fifth straight victory to annex the Windber (Pa.) Community League tournament title.

Moran was voted the Most Valuable Player Award in the tournament after Salem's won tonight's game.

Jack O'Malley and Don Felinski, St. Francis (Loretto, Pa.) College seniors, scored 12 and 10 points, respectively, for DiBartola's but Salem's limited Joe Calderone, former Johnstown High scoring ace, to two points.

Alonzo Johnson Wins At St. Nick

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alonzo Johnson, a promising heavyweight from Rankin, Pa., punched his way to a split decision over Billy Hunter of Detroit Monday night in the feature 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

It was Johnson's third straight victory at the ancient fight club this year. He weighed 187½ pounds for the non-televised bout. Hunter scaled 192.

Referee Davey Feld gave Johnson six rounds, awarded three to Hunter and called one even. Judge Joe Agnello also voted for Johnson, 7-3. The other judge, Leo Birnbaum, favored Hunter, 6-4.

Hank Thompson Is Arrested On Assault Charge

Slugged Woman, Bail Set At $1,500

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hank Thompson, former New York Giants third baseman, appeared in felony court Monday on charges that he slugged a woman press agent and stole $3 from her purse.

Thompson, 39, was arrested on burglary and assault charges after a complaint was made by Mrs. Ruth Bowen, 34, wife of a musician.

She said that Thompson became angry when she changed her mind about lending him money. She said he came to her apartment Saturday night, beat her and rifled her purse. She fled from the apartment and was treated at a hospital.

Thompson later telephoned her husband, Billy, whom he had known for about six years, and asked to meet him. Bowen notified police who arrested Thompson when he showed up at the meeting place.

Magistrate Ludwig Glowa reduced the charges to third degree assault and unlawful entry, and set bail at $1,500. Thompson was released by the Giants in 1957. He has been a salesman since.

Miranda May Play For Orioles Today, Suspension Lifted

BALTIMORE (AP) — The suspension against shortstop Willy Miranda was lifted by the Baltimore Orioles Monday night and he'll be available for the game against the New York Yankees Tuesday.

The little Cuban had reported 36 days late to the Oriole training camp at Miami and was fined or forfeited $1,000 of the $9,000 salary.

Mantle And Banks

Runs-batted-in — Mantle and Banks, both sluggers, both on teams that get men on base.

Most Valuable Players—Mantle on the theory he's out to "show the Yankees" and Mays but, unlike Banks last year, Willie may not get unless the Giants give the pennant a big run.

Stolen Bases — The defending champs—Mays and Luis Aparicio of the White Six.

Most Times Walked Intentionally — Musial and Mantle.

Most Pitching Victories — Warren Spahn of the Braves and Bob Turley of the Yankees, two guys who never fail to show up when their turn is called.

Wynn And Jones

Strikeout Artists (Pitching) — Early Wynn of the White Sox and Sam Jones of the Giants.

Most Times Striking Out — Mantle and Harry Anderson of the Phillies.

Most Walks Issued — Turley and Sam Jones.

Most Improved Teams — Detroit Tigers who went into the trading marts for different personnel and the Los Angeles Dodgers who shouldn't be as bad again as in '58.

Most Home Run Balls Pitched —Pedro Ramos of the Senators and Robin Roberts of the Phillies who both work often and aren't yanked for relievers as often as most.

Busiest Relievers—Don Elston of the Cubs who strolled in 65 times last season and Truman Clevenger of the Senators.

Most Times Plunked by Pitcher —Minnie Minoso of the Indians, the annual champ, and Walt Moryn of the Cubs.

Chancellors Win Second Half Title In K. Of C. League

Capt. Bernard Tasker's Chancellors captured three games from the Recorders last night at the Club Recreation Alleys and sewed up the second half championship of the Knights of Columbus Duckpin League.

The Grand Knights finished in the runner-up spot three games back by scoring a 2-1 decision over the Guards.

Next Monday night, the Chancellors will meet the Grand Knights, first half winners, in three games, total pins, for the league championship. The following Monday, April 27, the league will hold a doubles tournament.

Jack Loibel Jr., of the Grand Knights, was high scorer last night with a 215-544. Jack Steiner of the same team posted a three-game total of 522. Other high men were: Tom McGeady, Chancellors, 194-507; Jerry Loibel, Guards, 180-462, and Joe Monell, Recorders, 157-433.

The standings:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Chancellors	27	18	.600
Grand Knights	24	21	.533
Recorders	23	22	.511
Guards	16	29	.356

Pirates Drill, Toss Baseballs And Snowballs

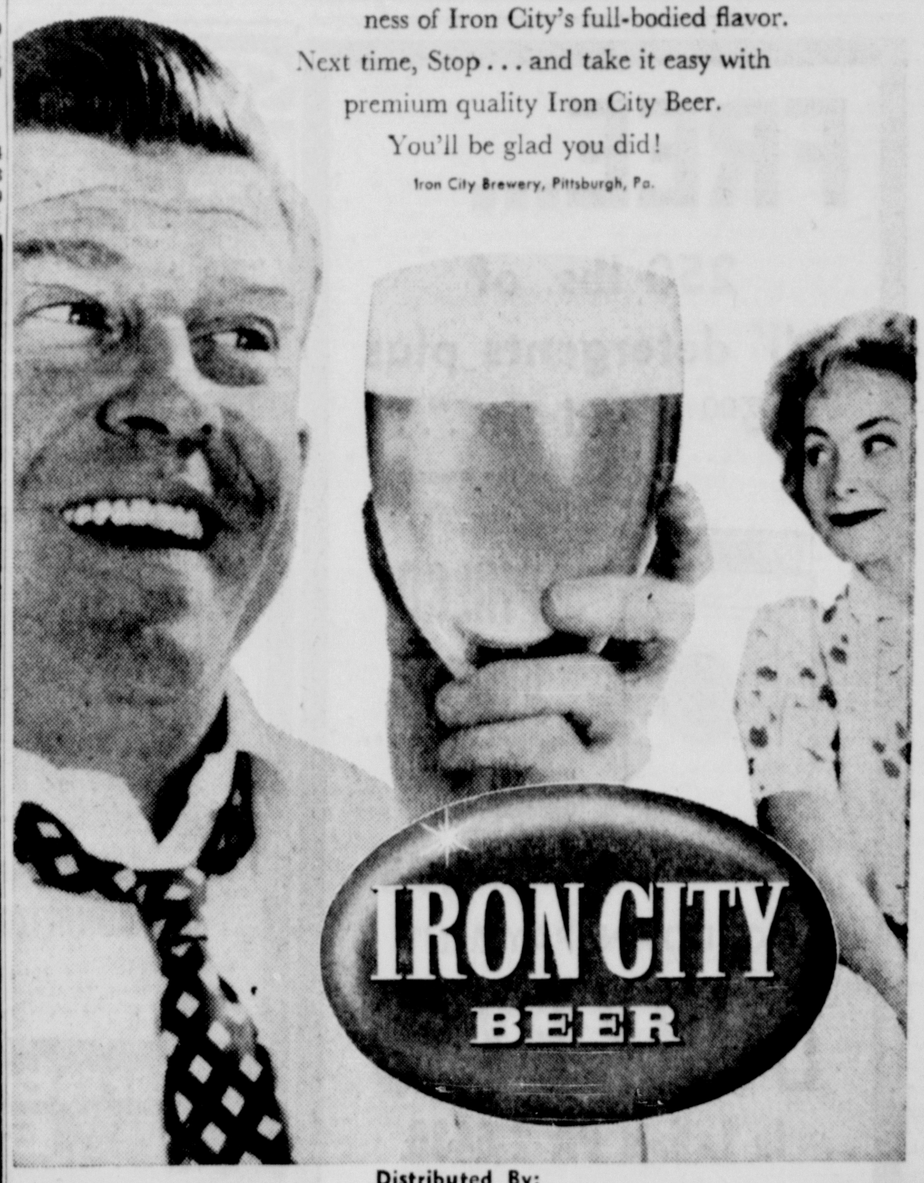

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Danny Murtaugh, disappointed by three straight losses, put his Pittsburgh Pirates through an hour-long drill Monday of tossing baseballs and snowballs—mostly snowballs.

The Pirates' skipper called the loosening up drill after a snowstorm Sunday forced postponement of the final game of a three-game series against Milwaukee.

Murtaugh said he was disappointed in the Pirates' hitting but felt it was only a temporary deterrent.

"We're not the only team that's going to lose three games in a row this year," said the genial Irishman. "We have a sound ball club and once we start hitting it will be a different story."

The Pirates have scored only 4 runs in losing 4-1 to Cincinnati in the opener and 8-0 and 4-3 to Milwaukee at Pittsburgh.

Spaniards learned the Egyptian method of making mud bricks from the ancient Moors and brought it to America. There it is still used for building structures in the southwestern part of the United States.

Opening lead: Four of ♥.

North and South were the victims of that old scourge, "duplication," in today's hand. Altho their high card assets were sufficient to have rendered the slam contract a laydown on most occasions, South was confronted for a time with an unavoidable loss. However, playing for the only combination that would permit fulfilment, he finally found some compensating luck.

North opened with one club and East inserted a preemptive jump overcall. This proved of little bother to South who showed his spade suit and West declined to participate on his puny assets for fear that it would serve only to further arouse his opponents.

Sensing slam prospects, North cue bid the hearts. South dutifully trotted out his club support and his partner reciprocated in spades. South felt assured that his side possessed sufficient assets for slam and he now embarked on a Blackwood inquiry to test the possibilities of seven. When his partner showed up with only one king South signed off at six spades, feeling that 12 tricks would come in with little effort.

West opened the four of hearts. Dummy won and declarer immediately attempted the trump finesse. Altho the king was on side, when West showed out on the next round East had a sure trump trick, which along with the apparently inevitable diamond loser seemed to consign the contract to a one trick set.

Declarer pondered the situation for a moment and then saw a remote chance to win the hand if East had only two diamonds. So he cashed the top diamonds and ran the club suit. East discarded on the third and fourth rounds but South put him in with his high trump and the forced heart return permitted declarer to discard his losing diamond.

Opening lead: Four of ♥.

North and South were the victims of that old scourge, "duplication," in today's hand. Altho their high card assets were sufficient to have rendered the slam contract a laydown on most occasions, South was confronted for a time with an unavoidable loss. However, playing for the only combination that would permit fulfilment, he finally found some compensating luck.

North opened with one club and East inserted a preemptive jump overcall. This proved of little bother to South who showed his spade suit and West declined to participate on his puny assets for fear that it would serve only to further arouse his opponents.

Sensing slam prospects, North cue bid the hearts. South dutifully trotted out his club support and his partner reciprocated in spades. South felt assured that his side possessed sufficient assets for slam and he now embarked on a Blackwood inquiry to test the possibilities of seven. When his partner showed up with only one king South signed off at six spades, feeling that 12 tricks would come in with little effort.

West opened the four of hearts. Dummy won and declarer immediately attempted the trump finesse. Altho the king was on side, when West showed out on the next round East had a sure trump trick, which along with the apparently inevitable diamond loser seemed to consign the contract to a one trick set.

Declarer pondered the situation for a moment and then saw a remote chance to win the hand if East had only two diamonds. So he cashed the top diamonds and ran the club suit. East discarded on the third and fourth rounds, but South put him in with his high trump and the forced heart return permitted declarer to discard his losing diamond.

Politics Ruling

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Roman Catholic church ruled Monday Catholics may not vote for politicians who profess to be Christians but who cooperate with Communists. Sources said the edict by the sacred congregation of the holy office in the Vatican was aimed primarily at voters in Sicily who will elect a regional council in June. Pope John XXIII approved the ruling.

Good Earnings Reports Help Market To Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks made their strongest showing in more than a week Monday in moderate trading.

Sentiment was helped by a number of excellent first quarter earnings reports from various industry leaders, including Du Pont, Allegheny Ludlum, North American Aviation and Aviation and Detroit Steel.

The earnings reports made good reading to the analysts. They had said that if net income for the period did not live up to earlier expectations, there was a good possibility of a downside trend.

The forecast of record steel production again this week, announcements of new government contracts and predictions the second half of 1959 may be better than anticipated earlier all combined to spur investment demand.

The drugs, electronics, steels and rails all were on the upside with individual gains running to 6 points in Pfizer and 5 in American Home Products in the drugs.

Gains of 2 points or more in this group appeared in Abbott Laboratories, Bristol-Myers, Carter Products and Smith-Kline & French. The drugs have been strong on the prospects of good earnings and new product developments.

Texas Instruments rose 4¼ in the electronics, where gains of a point or more were numerous. The steels responded to rising production and higher first quarter earnings. Allegheny Ludlum ran up more than a point on a good first quarter report.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Corn and wheat were firm; and other grains closed mostly steady Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was off ⅜ to up ⅞; corn up ⅜ to 1¼; oats unchanged to off ½; new oats unchanged to up ⅜; rye off ½ to up 1¾; soybeans off ½ to up ¾.

New crop deliveries of wheat, corn and soybeans registered new seasonal highs, on the heels of the government report that little moisture was expected in the Northwest.

The wheat market firmed after an early rally. A prominent commission house was a heavy buyer of May wheat after the opening. Early selling was light. Large farm stocks were reported.

The corn market was firm, with a broker buying December. Commission houses and cash interests were also buyers in corn. Northwest brokers bought the May. Receipts were liberal, but the spot basis was steady.

There was scattered selling of new September and May oats by commission houses and Northwest interests. Oats futures were steady to easier in a quiet market.

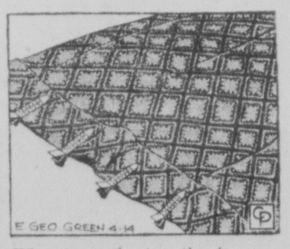

The soybean market was also quiet, with some export buying reported. Prices were slightly higher.

Chicago board of trade statisticians estimate the U.S. visible supply of wheat decreased 56,000 bushels last week, leaving 355,562,000 in stock; corn increased 1,982,000, leaving 92,908,000; oats decreased 157,000, leaving 16,609,000; rye decreased 87,000, leaving 2,484,000; barley increased 209,000, leaving 19,672,000, and soybeans decreased 409,000, leaving 22,958,000 bushels.

Grains at outside markets were firm. The range:

Good Earnings Reports Help Market To Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks made their strongest showing in more than a week Monday in moderate trading.

Sentiment was helped by a number of excellent first quarter earnings reports from various industry leaders, including Du Pont, Allegheny Ludlum, North American Aviation and Aviation and Detroit Steel.

The earnings reports made good reading to the analysts. They had said that if net income for the period did not live up to earlier expectations, there was a good possibility of a downside trend.

The forecast of record steel production again this week, announcements of new government contracts and predictions the second half of 1959 may be better than anticipated earlier all combined to spur investment demand.

The drugs, electronics, steels and rails all were on the upside with individual gains running to 6 points in Pfizer and 5 in American Home Products in the drugs.

Gains of 2 points or more in this group appeared in Abbott Laboratories, Bristol-Myers, Carter Products and Smith-Kline & French. The drugs have been strong on the prospects of good earnings and new product developments.

Texas Instruments rose 4¼ in the electronics, where gains of a point or more were numerous. The steels responded to rising production and higher first quarter earnings. Allegheny Ludlum ran up more than a point on a good first quarter report.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Corn and wheat were firm; and other grains closed mostly steady Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was off ⅜ to up ⅞; corn up ⅜ to 1¼; oats unchanged to off ½; new oats unchanged to up ⅜; rye off ½ to up 1¾; soybeans off ½ to up ¼.

New crop deliveries of wheat, corn and soybeans registered new seasonal highs, on the heels of the government report that little moisture was expected in the Northwest.

The wheat market firmed after an early rally. A prominent commission house was a heavy buyer of May wheat after the opening. Early selling was light. Large farm stocks were reported.

The corn market was firm, with a broker buying December. Commission houses and cash interests were also buyers in corn. Northwest brokers bought the May. Receipts were liberal, but the spot basis was steady.

There was scattered selling of new September and May oats by commission houses and Northwest interests. Oats futures were steady to easier in a quiet market.

The soybean market was also quiet, with some export buying reported. Prices were slightly higher.

Chicago board of trade statisticians estimate the U.S. visible supply of wheat decreased 56,000 bushels last week, leaving 355,562,000 in stock; corn increased 1,982,000, leaving 92,908,000; oats decreased 157,000, leaving 16,609,000; rye decreased 87,000, leaving 2,484,000; barley increased 209,000, leaving 19,672,000, and soybeans decreased 409,000, leaving 22,958,000 bushels.

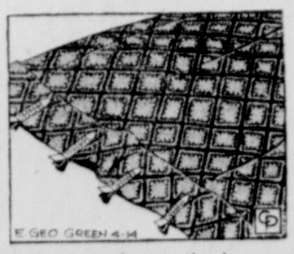

Grains at outside markets were firm. The range:

Budget Requests Mean Tax Hike, Rowan Declares

See 30c Rise Unless Funds Trimmed

By ALBERT D. DARBY Jr.
News Staff Writer

John J. Rowan, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, highlighted a budget meeting with the County Board of Education last night at the Court House by asserting that the county real estate tax rate will have to be raised 30 cents above its present $2.05 on each $100 of assessed valuation unless budgets can be cut.

The meeting actually appeared to be something like a clash between an "immovable" object and an "irresistible" force.

While the county commissioners were asking Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster for ways and means to reduce the $1,918,524 school budget for the 1959-60 fiscal year starting July 1, Mr. Webster and members of his Board of Education were asking that the teacher salary scale be raised $200 above its present $3,700-to-$5,500 range.

Mr. Webster explained that at the time he submitted the school budget to the county commissioners February 24 he felt assured that the General Assembly in Annapolis would raise teacher pay on a state-wide basis. That's why he asked for no increase in funds supplied by the county.

Approved Form

Mr. Rowan offered the observation that the school budget was not a very clear one because it offered no breakdown of budgetary items. Mr. Webster explained that the form he used is specified by the State Department of Education.

The superintendent of schools emphasized that the $1,918,524 requested from the county in the new fiscal year is only $14,524 more than the county is providing this year. The overall increase in the school budget is $135,075, but $128,614 of that boost comes from equalization funds received from the state, upped to $1,826,078.

Mr. Webster also offered the observation that any budget is nothing but an intelligent estimate. For instance, in the maintenance budget there was no specific item for replacement of part of the Corriganville School roof when it blew off. The roof obviously had to be replaced.

Commissioners William A. Wilson and John T. Mason came up with another point about the school budget. They pointed out that the items for interest and debt retirement of school construction obligations are not classified with the school budget. Mr. Wilson contended that when these items are added, about 76 cents out of every $1 in county tax money goes for schools.

Recalls Promise

Mr. Wilson also brought up a promise which he said was made to him a year ago by representatives of the Allegany County Teachers Association. He said at that time that he was told that the teachers would not press for a raise in salary schedules if the necessary legislation was passed to rectify an inequity in the teacher pension plan.

Senate Bill 58, as amended in the House of Delegates, gives teachers retiring after July 1 a $480 annual increase. Governor J. Millard Tawes has signed this into law. Despite this favorable legislation, the teachers are still persisting in their argument for the salary increase too, Mr. Wilson said.

In making his point about the threatened 30-cent increase in the tax rate, Mr. Rowan said that most of the departmental budgets already have been sliced. Despite this monetary surgery, the 30-cent boost is in the offing unless the school and welfare budgets can be cut. Mr. Wilson offered the observation that the welfare department budget will be reduced about $27,000. That will be a saving of not quite two cents on the tax rate.

Too Many Exemptions

Leslie J. Clark, attorney to the county commissioners, said that one of the basic troubles for the county is that too much property is exempted from county real estate taxes. He offered the observation that there is almost as much exempt as is on the books.

On the salary question, Mr. Wilson said he thought the ordinary county employes were deserving an increase more than the teachers. He said there are a number of county workers earning less than $2,000 a year.

Representing the county at last night's session were the three commissioners, Mr. Clark and Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, the county auditor. Mr. Webster brought with him four members of the Board of Education, Kenneth R. Malcolm, Mrs. Albert C. Cook, Joseph M. Miller and J. Goodloe Jackson; William H. Geppert, attorney to the board; Joseph T. Downey, supervisor of maintenance, and Mrs. Elizabeth D. Pitcher, financial secretary.

The action was taken at a meeting of executive board members from Cumberland, Frostburg, LaVale and Cresaptown groups at Frostburg City Hall.

Frostburg Community TV Inc. accepted the action unanimously after Leroy R. "Bill" Jenkins, president of the Cumberland group, read a motion approved by the Cumberland TV organization.

The Frostburg group now includes Frostburg Community TV Association, Inc., Peoples Community TV Association, Cresaptown TV Association and LaVale TV Association.

After the Cumberland unit was voted into membership last night, Mr. Jenkins was unanimously elected a vice president of the newly merged organization.

Mr. Jenkins said the action means another fund drive in Cumberland, to reach people who did not contribute in the original pledge campaign. He said it will be launched at a public meeting to be held soon.

Drives for pledges have been held in all of the areas covered by each group. Kenneth L. Close, president of the Frostburg group, announced that a sustained drive will be held in that area Wednesday and Thursday. Drives also are in progress in the Cresaptown and LaVale areas.

A building is now being constructed on Dan's Mountain to house the existing translator for Channel 9 and any additional translators.

Tower To Go Up

Work also is under way for the erection of a 67-foot steel tower to transmit the present UHF Channel 78, with provisions to transmit additional channels.

Eventually, the Frostburg TV unit hopes to provide all four major networks to all the areas participating in the program.

The Cumberland group plans to provide coverage for Cumberland, Ridgeley, Wiley Ford, Spring Gap, the Oldtown area, Bedford Road, Valley Road and Baltimore Pike areas.

Cresaptown covers Cresaptown, Rawlings, Pinto, Winchester Potomac Park, Fairgo, Fort Ashby and area.

Local Marines To Attempt 'Attack' On Washington

Cumberland's Sixth Infantry Company of the Marine Corps Reserve will go to Quantico, Va., this weekend to take part in a four-unit training exercise called Operation Vigilance.

If everything goes well, the Cumberland unit will get clobbered.

The Sixth Infantry Company is playing the role of an enemy of the United States, bent on capturing Washington, D. C. It is expected to put up a good but losing fight, and Reservists on both sides are expected to come out of Operation Vigilance better-trained in the complexities of atomic warfare as fought by ground troops.

"Atomic" Weapons

Lined up against the local Marines will be an overwhelming force of two infantry battalions and a heavy artillery battalion. Atomic explosions, of the harmless, make-believe variety, will be liberally sprinkled among the Cumberland ranks.

To even up the odds somewhat, the Sixth will be called a reinforced battalion, and it too will have its share of atomic devices.

A specially designed "atomic simulator" will be used to produce the mushroom cloud associated with atom weapons. Opposing troops will shoot blank ammunition at one another, and fireworks will help keep them on their toes through the night. The artillery unit will fire live rounds but no one will get hurt, say the aritllerymen, because they'll be firing at targets well out of the way of the troops.

Will Face Three Units

Leading the Cumberland unit is Captain Billy C. Menges, of 27 Woodlawn Avenue, LaVale. The regular inspector-instructor of the unit is Captain Richard V. Molesky.

Converging on Quantico to oppose the Sixth will be the First 105 mm. Howitzer Battalion, Richmond, Va.; the 13th Infantry Battalion, Washington, D. C. (playing two battalions); and the Fifth Staff Group, Washington, D. C.

The Sixth is expected to number about 70 men for Operation Vigilance. It will leave Cumberland early Saturday, and will begin its homeward trip from Quantico at 10 a. m. Sunday.

The local unit will travel to and from Quantico in trucks loaned by Cumberland units of the National Guard.

Representatives from Nemacolin Trail District who attended the institute were William Helbert, M. G. Thompson, Clyde Cessna, C. Ray Sine, John Kington and Walter Maxey.

Gas Firm To Build Area Facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Manufacturers Light and Heat Co., Pittsburgh, Monday received temporary authority from the Power Commission to build and operate about $5,380,000 worth of natural gas pipeline facilities in Pennsylvania.

After construction of the new facilities in Franklin, Fulton, Bedford, Somerset, Fayette and Greene counties, the company plans to abandon five parallel lines in Fulton and Bedford counties which total about 135 miles.

Man Sues For $5,000 Damages

A $5,000 damage suit resulting from an accident during the construction of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant at North Branch three years ago has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Frank C. Bloss, RFD 1, Oldtown, through Attorney Edward J. Ryan, brought the action against the George F. Hazelwood Company.

Mr. Bloss cited in his declaration that he was employed by the Consolidated Engineering Company doing some grading work at the PPG plant site on April 12, 1956. He contends that while doing his work, he was struck by a bulldozer owned by the defendant and being operated by one of the company's employes.

As a result, the plaintiff declares, he sustained three broken ribs and other injuries and was totally disabled for about seven weeks. He filed for compensation against his employer and was paid a total of $625 in disability payments. He is suing the Hazelwood firm for additional loss which he contended he sustained.

Traffic Count Is Planned At Y Intersection

Study Will Be Made Here This Week

A traffic count will be made here this week as the first step toward a practical solution of traffic congestion at the Central YMCA intersection, according to Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming.

Traffic converges at the busy intersection from Baltimore Street, Baltimore Avenue, upper Baltimore Street, Front Street and Park Street, and the chaotic traffic situation worsens whenever the Baltimore Street crossing is blocked by B&O trains.

Commissioner Fleming said the traffic count will be made by the Engineering Department on Wednesday and Thursday in cooperation with the Police Department and the State Roads Commission.

J. D. Forrest, SRC traffic analyst, yesterday forwarded to City Engineer C. R. Nuzum three traffic counters along with detailed forms and plans for conducting the counts.

SRC To Study

Mr. Forrest, who was here recently in connection with a traffic problem facing the city at the intersection of North Centre Street and Henderson Avenue, asked that tally sheets be mailed to the SRC for tabulation.

He told Mr. Fleming that when the study is completed by the SRC Traffic Bureau, he will come here to discuss with city officials what action might be taken.

The traffic counts will be made Wednesday and Thursday from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. by members of the Engineering Department.

Takes 3 Counters

One man will be stationed on Baltimore Street, near the railroad crossing, to note the vehicles which turn into Baltimore Avenue, Front Street, Park Street and up and down Baltimore Street.

The second man will be located on Baltimore Street east to note vehicles which descend the hill to go downtown to Baltimore Street, Baltimore Avenue, Park Street or Front Street.

The third man will be stationed on Park Street to note which vehicles go downtown, to Front Street, to Baltimore Avenue, or up Baltimore Street.

On Thursday, one man will be stationed on Baltimore Avenue to check traffic going to Front Street, Baltimore Street downtown, Baltimore Street uphill or out Park Street.

The second checker will be stationed on Front Street to list traffic proceeding to Baltimore Avenue, Baltimore Street downtown or uphill or out Park Street.

Will Check Crossing

The third checker will make an accurate check of all times when trains block the crossing.

Mr. Nuzum yesterday afternoon had several members of the Engineering Department at the intersection, making spot checks in preparation for the actual traffic counts.

The Police Department will cooperate in the traffic count to expedite the work of the engineering workers.

During his March 11 visit here, Mr. Forrest met with city officials and recommended that a three-way traffic light be set up to control the North Centre Street-Henderson Avenue intersection. Commissioner Fleming is studying the proposal.

Home Show Exhibitors Getting Displays Ready

Exhibitors in the Jaycee Home Show are now setting up their displays in the old Potomac Edison Car Barn on North Centre Street, the Junior Association of Commerce announced yesterday.

Yesterday, exhibitors from as far away as Johnstown, Pa., and Hagerstown were trucking merchandise into town for display at the Home Show. Display space—all of it on one floor — totals 17,000 square feet.

The Jaycees said some parking will be available on the old Potomac Edison lot next to the former car barn.

Co-chairmen of the show are Glen R. Brant and W. Bruce Douglas.

Budget Requests Mean Tax Hike, Rowan Declares

See 30c Rise Unless Funds Trimmed

News Staff Writer

John J. Rowan, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, highlighted a budget meeting with the County Board of Education last night at the Court House by asserting that the county real estate tax rate will have to be raised 30 cents above its present $2.05 on each $100 of assessed valuation unless budgets can be cut.

The meeting actually appeared to be something like a clash between an "immovable" object and an "irresistible" force.

While the county commissioners were asking Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster for ways and means to reduce the $1,918,524 school budget for the 1959-60 fiscal year starting July 1, Mr. Webster and members of his Board of Education were asking that the teacher salary scale be raised $200 above its present $3,700-to-$5,500 range.

Mr. Webster explained that at the time he submitted the school budget to the county commissioners February 24 he felt assured that the General Assembly in Annapolis would raise teacher pay on a state-wide basis. That's why he asked for no increase in funds supplied by the county.

Approved Form

Mr. Rowan offered the observation that the school budget was not a very clear one because it offered no breakdown of budgetary items. Mr. Webster explained that the form he used is specified by the State Department of Education.

The superintendent of schools emphasized that the $1,918,524 requested from the county in the new fiscal year is only $14,524 more than the county is providing this year. The overall increase in the school budget is $135,075, but $128,614 of that boost comes from equalization funds received from the state, upped to $1,826,078.

Mr. Webster also offered the observation that any budget is nothing but an intelligent estimate. For instance, in the maintenance budget there was no specific item for replacement of part of the Corriganville School roof when it blew off. The roof obviously had to be replaced.

Commissioners William A. Wilson and John T. Mason came up with another point about the school budget. They pointed out that the items for interest and debt retirement of school construction obligations are not classified with the school budget. Mr. Wilson contended that when these items are added, about 76 cents out of every $1 in county tax money goes for schools.

Recalls Promise

Mr. Wilson also brought up a promise which he said was made to him a year ago by representatives of the Allegany County Teachers Association. He said at that time that he was told that the teachers would not press for a raise in salary schedules if the necessary legislation was passed to rectify an inequity in the teacher pension plan.

Senate Bill 58, as amended in the House of Delegates, gives teachers retiring after July 1 a $480 annual increase. Governor J. Millard Tawes has signed this into law. Despite this favorable legislation, the teachers are still persisting in their argument for the salary increase too, Mr. Wilson said.

In making his point about the threatened 30-cent increase in the tax rate, Mr. Rowan said that most of the departmental budgets already have been sliced. Despite this monetary surgery, the 30-cent boost is in the offing unless the school and welfare budgets can be cut. Mr. Wilson offered the observation that the welfare department budget will be reduced about $27,000. That will be a saving of not quite two cents on the tax rate.

Too Many Exemptions

Leslie J. Clark, attorney to the county commissioners, said that one of the basic troubles for the county is that too much property is exempted from county real estate taxes. He offered the observation that there is almost as much exempt as is on the books.

On the salary question, Mr. Wilson said he thought the ordinary county employes were deserving an increase more than the teachers. He said there are a number of county workers earning less than $2,000 a year.

Representing the county at last night's session were the three commissioners, Mr. Clark and Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, the county auditor. Mr. Webster brought with him four members of the Board of Education, Kenneth R. Malcolm, Mrs. Albert C. Cook, Joseph M. Miller and J. Goodloe Jackson; William H. Geppert, attorney to the board; Joseph T. Downey, supervisor of maintenance, and Mrs. Elizabeth D. Pitcher, financial secretary.

He contends that while doing his work, he was struck by a bulldozer owned by the defendant and being operated by one of the company's employes.

As a result, the plaintiff declares, he sustained three broken ribs and other injuries and was totally disabled for about seven weeks. He filed for compensation against his employer and was paid a total of $625 in disability payments. He is suing the Hazelwood firm for additional loss which he contended he sustained.

Traffic Count Is Planned At Y Intersection

Study Will Be Made Here This Week

A traffic count will be made here this week as the first step toward a practical solution of traffic congestion at the Central YMCA intersection, according to Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming.

Traffic converges at the busy intersection from Baltimore Street, Baltimore Avenue, upper Baltimore Street, Front Street and Park Street, and the chaotic traffic situation worsens whenever the Baltimore Street crossing is blocked by B&O trains.

Commissioner Fleming said the traffic count will be made by the Engineering Department on Wednesday and Thursday in cooperation with the Police Department and the State Roads Commission.

J. D. Forrest, SRC traffic analyst, yesterday forwarded to City Engineer C. R. Nuzum three traffic counters along with detailed forms and plans for conducting the counts.

SRC To Study

Mr. Forrest, who was here recently in connection with a traffic problem facing the city at the intersection of North Centre Street and Henderson Avenue, asked that tally sheets be mailed to the SRC for tabulation.

He told Mr. Fleming that when the study is completed by the SRC Traffic Bureau, he will come here to discuss with city officials what action might be taken.

The traffic counts will be made Wednesday and Thursday from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. by members of the Engineering Department.

Takes 3 Counters

One man will be stationed on Baltimore Street, near the railroad crossing, to note the vehicles which turn into Baltimore Avenue, Front Street, Park Street and up and down Baltimore Street.

The second man will be located on Baltimore Street east to note vehicles which descend the hill to go downtown to Baltimore Street, Baltimore Avenue, Park Street or Front Street.

The third man will be stationed on Park Street to note which vehicles go downtown, to Front Street, to Baltimore Avenue, or up Baltimore Street.

On Thursday, one man will be stationed on Baltimore Avenue to check traffic going to Front Street, Baltimore Street downtown, Baltimore Street uphill or out Park Street.

The second checker will be stationed on Front Street to list traffic proceeding to Baltimore Avenue, Baltimore Street downtown or uphill or out Park Street.

Will Check Crossing

The third checker will make an accurate check of all times when trains block the crossing.

Mr. Nuzum yesterday afternoon had several members of the Engineering Department at the intersection, making spot checks in preparation for the actual traffic counts.

The Police Department will cooperate in the traffic count to expedite the work of the engineering workers.

During his March 11 visit here, Mr. Forrest met with city officials and recommended that a three-way traffic light be set up to control the North Centre Street-Henderson Avenue intersection. Commissioner Fleming is studying the proposal.

Home Show Exhibitors Getting Displays Ready

Exhibitors in the Jaycee Home Show are now setting up their displays in the old Potomac Edison Car Barn on North Centre Street, the Junior Association of Commerce announced yesterday.

The Home Show will open Thursday at 6 p. m., with 104 booths and six outdoor exhibits containing latest home building, decorating and improvement materials.

Also on display will be several 1959 model cars, domestic and foreign.

The three-day show will run from 6 to 10 p. m. Thursday and Friday, and from 1 to 9 p. m. Saturday.

Yesterday, exhibitors from as far away as Johnstown, Pa., and Hagerstown were trucking merchandise into town for display at the Home Show. Display space—all of it on one floor — totals 17,000 square feet.

The Jaycees said some parking will be available on the old Potomac Edison lot next to the former car barn.

Proceeds from the show will go toward Jaycees civic improvement projects.
